PREFATORY NOTE.

In the following, I have attempted to place within the easy reach of modern students of Sanskṛit literature, that elementary and classic, but nevertheless difficult treatise on Alankāras, the Kuvalayānanda Kārikās of Appaya Dīkshita, with an English translation, Tīkā commentary, and explanatory notes, so as to enable them to sufficiently understand and digest the subject even in the absence of better teachers.

Among the numerous treatises on the Science of poetry, the K $\bar{A} V Y A P R A K \bar{A} S A$-the "Illustration of Poetry,"一the SĀHITYA DARPANA - the "Mirror of Composition,"-and the KUVALAYĀNANDA—the "Delight of the moon-lotus,"-are considered the best. Of these, the first-named is by far the most difficult and erudite work, notwithstanding innumerable commentaries thereon by able hands. The second is less difficult, and it is a complete treatise-ne plus ultra-on the whole subject of Sanskrit composition, including Dramaturgy. The last-named treatise, which is the most elementary as well as the most elegant of all, confines itself only to Alankāras or 'ornaments' of the language, the portion that forms the subject matter of the tenth chapter of the first two treatises. There already exist excellent English translations of the K $\bar{\alpha} v y a p r a k \bar{\alpha} s a$ and the Sãhitya-Darpana; yet, they, being higher treatises, are intelligible only to advanced students under the guidance of able teachers. And the Kuvalayānanda, with its elementary definitions of the principal Alankāras and its apt examples, is the work that every student of this branch of Sanskṛit Literature usually commences with. The Kuvalayānanda is a sort of commentary, in the form of notes, and an expansion of the fifth chapter of an ancient work on the Science of poetry, known as the CHANDRĀLOKA by Jayadeva Kavi, who is reputed to have Hourished about the 12th century of the Christian era and who is more generally known to the public in connection with his charming lyric, the "Gīta-Govinda. The author of the KuvaIayānanda is Appaya Dīkshita,* as appears from the penultimate verse of the work:-

अमुं कुवलयानन्दम करोद्पदीच्तित:।

‘Appa Dīkshita wrote this Kuvalayānanda under the orders 'of this (Royal Patron) Venkatapati, a store-house of guileless mercy.'

From which it would also appear that he flourished at the court of the king Venkatapati and that it was at his suggestion that the treatise was written. This Appaya Dīkshita is admitted on all hands to have been a native of Adayappa Agrahāra, near Kānchīpura (the modern Canjeeveram), and to have lived in the 16th century of the Christian era. He not - only took the 5 th chapter of the Chandrāloka for his basis, but bas mostly re-written many of the definitions and examples of that treatise, as he himself says at the very outset:-

येषiं चन्द्रालोके टृश्यन्ते लच्यलच्याश्न का:। प्रायस्त एव तेषामितरेषामभिनवा विरचन्ते॥

'Such verses as are found in the Chandrāloka defining and exemplifying the Alankāras are for the most part adopted here also (with slight modifications) ; but, for some others, new verses have been composed.'

T'o these verses so modified or newly composed, our author has also added short elucidatory notes in prose, and to these notes he gave the name of Kuvalayānanda, probably in acknowledgment of his original basis, the Chandrāloka. Thus, he concludes his work with the following very expressive verse:-

चन्द्रालोको. विजयतां शरदागमसम्भव:।

हृद्य: कुवलयानन्दो यव्रसादादभूदयम् ॥

"May this Chandraloka, the cause of its commentary ontitled! Sarrodagama, from the contact of both of which this charming Kuvalayānanda originated, be supreme (in this world).'

The other meaning of the verse is :-
' May the sight of the autumnal moon from the contact of which the delight of the moon-lotus sprang be supreme.'

The verses, alone as modified and finally adopted by Appaya Dīkshita in his treatise, often go by the name of Kuvalayā-nanda-Kārikās or the 'memorial-verses of Kuvalayānanda,' and these have been separately compiled and edited under the title of KUVALAYĀNANDA KĀRIKĀH. by the poet Āśādhara, with a lucid commentary of his own. The verses themselves are, as already mentioned; simple and in elegant style, in the: Anushṭubh metre, the first half of each verse defining theAlankāra and the second half exemplifying the same.

Before proceeding to explain the arrangement that I havefollowed in this work, it may not be out of place to say an word or two as to the necessity of this production and as. to the aim and object which I have had in placing the same before the public. For the acquisition of $a$ : sound knowledge of any language, a knowledge of the rules of its Grammar, including Rhetoric and Composition; will be admitted to be essential. This is especially the-case when, the language in question happens to be not a spoken vernacular, But an unspoken classical language like the Sanskrit.. All the works in the Sanskrit Literature are found to have been composed upon fixed principles of Grammar and Rhetoric; and formerly, at any rate, no work that was not in complete accordance with the immutable rules of Sāhitya was ever allowed to bepublished. And in those days, the authors also, whatever their social position or poetical fame may be, never ventured outs with any composition that did not gain the approval of the learned. One remarkable instance of this which occurred in connection with the publication of the Champ $\bar{u} R \bar{a} m \bar{a} y a n a ~ b y ~$ king Bhoja might here be given in illustration of the above :-

Bhoja Vikramāditya wrote his Champū - a poem composed in prose and verse-during the absence of his favourite poets Kālidāsa whom the king in one of his angry moods had banished from his court. That great learned king did not dare to publish his poem without first obtaining the approval of the greatest poet of India! Then the whereabouts of Kālidāsa was not known. He therefore proposed to the publie the following Samasy $\bar{\alpha}-$ a part of the stanza or an incomplete stanza-to be completed:-

कुसुमे कुसुमोत्पत्ति: श्रूयते न च टृश्यते ।

'The production of another flower upon a flower has been heard but not actually seen (anywhere).'

The king expected the appropriate fulfilment of this most difficult Samasyā̄ from Kālidāsa alone. He declared publicly that he would bestow upon whoever completed the Samasya half of his kingdom. Kālidāsa's lady wrote this Samasya upon one of the walls of her bed-chamber where Kālidāsa was living secretly. When he saw the stanza on the wall, he wrote under it addressing the lady whom he thought to be the writer of thesame, thus:-

बाले तव मुखाभ्भोजे नयनेन्दीवरहयम्।

> 'Young dame! There is a couple of eye-lotuses in thy facelotus.'

The lady then threw Kālidāsa into a pit specially prepared and let fall a big stone upon him; but she, in her hurry to. go to the king to get half of his kingdom, did not stop there to see whether Kālidāsa was completely killed or not. The lady went to the king; and the ready-witted king, seeing the fulfilment of the stanza addressed to a female and not to a male as it ought to be, if filled up by her, and, thinking that Kālidāsa was living in her house, asked her whether she had spared the life of Kālidāsa. "She replied that she had thrown him into a pit and did not know if he had completely expired. The king hurried to the scene of action with hiss poem in hand. Kālidāsa, only half dead then, said to his weeping king that the human life is unstable, that to learned people this world is nothing but its proper nothingness, and that he should therefore be allowed to pass the remaining few minutes of his life to meditate upon the Supreme Spirit. The king wanted his poem on divine Rāma to be read over to him so that he may correct all the blemishes contained in it. The king read his poem and a running criticism was made by the Greatest Poet of India, and, when the last stanza of the Sundarakāụda was read, Kālidāsa expired. The king offered to the public his Champ $\bar{u}$, one of the best poems of the language, up to Sundarakāṇda only, the remaining two kāndas, Yuddhakanda and Uttara-kanda, having been torn away by the king on the spot as they were not perused by Kälidāsa.

Such was the criticism going ou in India before the publication of any work. It was the look-out of every critic to see whether the particular work has been composed in strict accordance with the fixed rules of Grammar, Rhetoric etc. Hence, it is necessary that a student should know something of the Grammar, Figures of Speech of the language etc., to enable him to understand a poem. In other words, a student can very easily master a poem if he has known something of the Grammar and Alankāras. For the acquirement of the elements of the Sanskrit Grammar in its connection with the Language, the First and Second Books of Sanskrit were placed before the public over 35 years ago by that great oriental scholar, Mr. Rāmakrishṇal Gopāla Bhandarakara; and they still remain as model Text Books of the kind. Let me quote here his ows words from the prefaces to his Second Book:-
'My object hias been to render this as much a Sanskiritit Reading Book. as an book on. Sanskrit Grammar ; in other words, not only to teach Grammatical forms to the student, but to enable him, to construe Sanskrit.'.
'I was not so sanguine about the success' of this book as of the first. But I am very happy to perceive that this also has met withs favour, and that along withe thie first it has become the means, howsoever humble, of facilitating and promoting the study of the language of the ancient Rishis among their modern descendants.'

As for the acquirement of the knowledge of. the Alankāras, almost in every institution, the Kuvalayānanda appears to have been recommended as a text book for: the B.A. degree students. But in the majority, the students either do not read the book, or they do not care to grasp and digest what their Professors; might teach them about these Alankāras. The study of Alankāras is as essential as that of Grammar. No poem contains a verse that is not embellished by one Alankāra on another: For, Alankāras; by adding to the beauty of word and sense; serve to heighten the flavour (RASA) etc., just as ornaments adorn and beautify the human form. That great learned Dr. R. G. Bhandarakara in the preface to thefirst edition of his First Book of Sanskṛit says truly enough :-

I have heard students complain that they find Sanskrit more. difficult than Latin. * * * I do not know if this complaint has foundation in the structure of the two languages; but this, at least, I am sure of, that Sanskrit would Be considerablymore easy than it is, if there were men educated' in our EnglishColleges to teach it, and if books specially adapted for beginners: were available.*

That the above remarks of the great Bombay Educationist were true, has been amply proved by the very prominent position which his First and Second Books of Sanskrit have been given in the Indian Educational curriculam. So far as I am

[^1]Tware, no such book has till now been placed within the reach of the Sanskrit students on the subject of Alankāras. And I have therefore ventured to offer this to the public in the sincere hope that it may supply to some extent the long-fert want of the students of this branch of Sanskrit Literature.

The Alankāras in Sanskṛit are generally classed under three heads, viz.:-
i. शब्दालंकार-Ormament of word;
ii. भ्रर्यालंकार-Ornamert of sense ; and
iii. शब्दार्यर्गलंकार-Ornament of both word and sense. 'Of these, the 2nd class, viz., Ornaments of Sense alone are now treated in the present work. The other two, not being of so much importance, except to very advanced scholars, are not dwelt upon here.

In the present volume, each and every word in the verse containing the definitiou and the example is given in its prose order (anvaya) in an intelligible way with its English equivalent and a literal English translation of the verse has been given under the same together with all the necessary explanations that are sufficient to help the student in understanding the Figure and its example himself without the assistance of : a teacher. In the Appendix, almost all the conventions of poets are given; UPAMA in its 32 varieties and the APRASTUTAPRASAMSA in its 5 varieties are treated with their appropriate examples taken from the standard works. Addicional examples of certain Figures that require such are also given. The three Figures-ANUMĀNA - 'Inference,' SAMS-RISHTI- 'Conjunction,' and SANKARA-'Commixture,' which are not found in the body of the book are also defined and exemplified. To it are also appended a more or less scientific classification of the Alankāras treated in the book, and an explanatory note, showing the mutual distinguishing peculiarities of many of the Alankāras.

Now I must mention here the works I have consulted in she course of the publication of the present volume. The first and foremost of these is the Sāhitya-Darpana of Vishvanātha Kavirāja with its English translation by that distinguished scholar, Rai Bahadur Pramada-Dasa Mitra of Benares. Many of the English renderings of the Figures of Speech are adopted from the work of that able orientalist who borrowed the same from Mr. R. T. H. Griffith's paper on Indian Figures of Speech appended to his Specimens of Old Indian Poetry. The Chandrikā and the Rasikaranjinī, the two famous commentaries on Kuvalayānanda, were also my chief guides. The Kāvyaprakasa and its English translation, the Pratāpa-Rudrīya of Vidyānātha Bhaṭta and the Sāhitya-Ratnākara of Srī Dharma Sūri were also consulted. My heart-felt thanks are also due to Messrs. J. N. Banerjee and Son of Calcutta for their neat execution of the work and for their extreme kindness shown to me in the course of its publication.

In conclusion, I only hope that the work now offered to the public may serve the purpose for which it is intended-namely, to enable the student to thoroughly understand this difficult branch of Sanskṛit Literature without much difficulty and with very little of extraneous help. I am fully aware that, in a work of this kind, there must be several defects and errors, and I most humbly crave the favour of the public, who will have occasion to do me the honour of perusing this little book, to be so good as to point out to me the portions which require amendments or corrections; and I shall be only very willing to give my best consideration to those suggestions in any future edition of the work.

\section*{उपमा ।}

Ex.: O Kishna thy fame like a she-swan enters the celestial Ganges (or pervades the celestial regions and this earth).

This is an example of पूर्योंपमा (पूर्या = full, उपमा \(=\) simile) 'simile complete' ; for, it contains all the four essentials of comparison, which are :-
1. उपमेयम्, वस्यूम् or विषय:-The object compared, i. e., the subject of comparison, such as face &c.
2. उपमानम्, #्रवर्यम् or ரँवषयी-The object compared to, i. e., the standard of comparison, such as moon, lotus &c.
3. साधारापार्म: or सामान्यधर्म: or simply धर्म:-The common attribute, \(i\). e., the characteristic resemblance between the two objects (the object compared and the object compared to) ; or the quality of the said two objects that occasions their similitude such as charmingness or the like.
4. उपमावाचक: or simply वाचक:-The word implying comparison, such as डूव 'as' or the like.

> In the present example :-

कोर्ति:-the object compared हंसी-the object compared to अ्रवगाहते, \(i\). \(e\)., अवगाहनक्रिया = 'the act of entering or pervading'-the common attribute द्वव = the word implying comparison.
Observe :-कीर्ति: 'fame,' यश् 'reputation' and हास: 'laughter' are always described as white according to the convention of the poets. Hence, the fame of Krishna is compared to a swan which is of white colour.

By the omission of one, two or three (of the four requisites of simile complete, i. e., the object compared, the object compared to, the common attribute and the word implying comparison) the simile becomes elliptical and is eightfold, which are :-
1. वाचकलुप्ता-Simile in the omission of the word implying comparison.
2. धर्मलुप्ता- Do. Do. of the common attribute.
3. धर्मवाचकलुप्ता- Do. Do. of the common attribute and of the word implying comparison.
4. वाचकोपमेय बुप्ता- Do. Do. of the word implying comparison and of the object compared.
5. उपमानवाचकलुपा-Do. Do. of the object compared to and the word implying comparison.
6. उपमानलुप्रा- Do, Do. of the object compared to.
7. उपमानवाचकधर्मलुप्रा-Do. Do. of the object compared to, of the word implying comparison and of the common attribute.
8. उपमानधर्मलुपा- Do. Do. of the object compared to and of the common attribute.

Examples of the first four Elliptical Similes in their order.

कान्या my of eyes acts (like) the camphor by (her) loveliness

A slender woman was seen by me in a lonely place-a woman (as) yellowish as the lightning; and, having the face like the moon, she acts (like) camphor to my eyes, and by (her) loveliness she acts (herself) like the Goddess of love.
1. तड़िहौरी-If this compound is uncompounded, we have तड़िद्दु दूव गौरी, where :-
तड़िद्-the object compared to गौरी-the common attribute
तन्वो-the object compared.

We have, in this example, these 3 requisites, but the remaining requisite, the word \(\boldsymbol{\xi}\) व, expressive of comparison, is indirectly omitted; and, in the expansion of the compound, it becomes expressed and so this is the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 1, -in the omission of the word implying comparison (वाचकलुपा).
2. दून्दुतुल्यास्या, when uncompounded, becomes इन्दुना तुल्यं क्यास्यं यस्याः सा 'she whose face is like the moon,' where :-
द्न्दु:—the object compared to तुल्यम्-the word implying comparison
श्रास्यम्-the object compared.
Here, we have the above three requisites; and the remaining requisite-the common attribute such as charmingness &c., we have not got. Hence, this is the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 2,-in the omission of the common attribute ( धर्मलुप्ता ).

Observe :-With regard to Elliptical Similes in the omission of the common attribute only, the word omission 'लोप:' is used strictly in the sense in which it is used in the Pānini's Sūtra 'अ्रदर्शनं लोप:' (I. 1.60) 'The disappearance is called 'लोप:'. With regard to the omissions of the other three, \(i\). e., the object compared, the object compared to and the word implying comparison, they are indirectly omitted; but when the compounds which contain them are uncompounded, they come to light, and thus, we see, they are understood. Moreover, the student should note that, without these three requisites, either expressed or understood, there will be no simile at all.
3. कर्परन्ती दृशोमम । कर्पूरन्ती is the present participial noun, feminine gender, of the nominal verb 'कर्पूरति' having the क्रिप् affix expressive of comparison omitted. If it is uncompounded, it becomes कर्पूरमिव ग्याचरन्तो-she acts like the camphor', where :-
(1) तन्वt-in the second line of the sloka is the object compared and
(2) कर्पू रम्- is the object compared to.

Thus, we have here only the above two requisites and the other two ingredients of comparison, the common attribute and the word implying comparison, are omitted. Hence, this is the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 3,--in the omission of the common attribute and the word implying comparison ( घर्मंवाचकलुप्ता ).
4. कांत्या स्मरवधुन्तो-by (her) loveliness, she acts. (herself) like Kāma's bride. The compound स्मरवधूयन्ती is the present participial noun, feminine gender, of the nominal verb स्मरवधूयति having the affix 'kyach' ( क्यच्) expressive of comparison. If it is uncompounded, it becomes ग्यात्मानम् स्मरवधूम् द्रव ग्रावरन्तो ; where we have
(1) स्मरवधू-the object compared to
(2) कांत्या-the common attribute only two essentials of comparison. The other two, i. e., the object compared ग्रात्मानम् 'herself' and the word expressive of comparison दूव 'as' are indirectly omitted. Hence, we have the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 4,-in the omission of the word implying comparison and the object compared ( वाचकोपमेय लुप्ता).

Examples of the Elliptical Similes Nos. 5 and 6.

\section*{यत्तया मेलनं तन्न लाभो मे यश्च तद्रते:। तदेतत्काकतालीयमरवतर्कीतसम्भवम् ॥}

My meeting with that lady, in that lonely place, and my gain of sexual intercourse with that ladyeach is an accidental occurrence like the maxim of the crow and the palm fruit.

This is the most puzzling example. The compound काकतालीयम् must be first analyzed; but its analysis can be best understood only when the Pānini's Sūtra समासाच तदिषयात् (V. 3. 106) with its commentary is rightly and fully understood. This Sūtra contains 3 words and one word \(玉\) : is to be supplied from the preceding Sūtra (V. 3. 105) and the full Sūtra stands thus :-

\section*{समासात् च तढ्-विषयात् छः।}

The affix Chha ( दूय ) comes, also in the sense of 'like this', after a compound noun containing in itself the force of 'like this' (hidden).

> Kūsikā commentary on the Sütra.

तद् इूत्यनेन प्रक्रत: इवार्थ: निर्दिश्यते-By the word तदु the sense of द्वव, the subject of discussion, is referred to.
द्ववर्थरविषयात् समामात् अ्रपरस्मिन् द्वार्थे एव छ: प्रत्ययो भवतिThe affix Chha ( द्रेय ) comes, only in the second sense of द्व 'like this', after a compound containing in itself the force of ह्वव.

Examples.
1. काकतालीयम्-Like the maxim of the crow (काक) and the palm fruit (ताल).
2. ग्रजाक्रपाएोयम्-Like the death of a goat ( अ्रजा) by the accidental falling of a sword ( क्वपाएय ).
3. अन्धकवर्वर्त्तकीयम्-Like the accidental falling of a quail ( वर्शत्तिकी ) into the hands of a blind person ( अन्धक ).

च्रतर्कितोपनतं चित्रोकरएम् उचति-Unintentional and strange coincidences are referred to here.
तत् कथम्-How is that.
तालस्य पतनं च-As also the (sudden) fall of the palm fruit (on the head of the crow).

एवं एव देवदत्तस्य तत्र अागमनम्-In the very same manner, the coming of Devadatta (a person) there.

दस्यूनां च उपनिपात:-In the same manner, the sudden attack of robbers (upon Devadatta).

तन यो देवदत्तस्य दस्सूनां च समागमः, सः काकतालसमागमसद्धश: -There, the coincidence of the person Devadatta and the robbers is like that of the crow and the palm fruit.
दति एक: उपसार्थ:-This is the first sense of 'like this' (in the compound काकतालम्).
घतश्र देवदत्तस्य वधः, सः का कतालवधसदृश:-Then, the killing of Devadatta is like that of the crow by the fall of the palm fruit.

तत्न प्रथमे, समास:- \(n\) the first case, we have the sense of इव in the compound (काकतालम् hidden).
हितीये, प्रत्यय:-In the second case, we have the same, expressed in the affix \(\boldsymbol{\xi}\) (in the compound काकतालीयम्).
समासग्य. ग्नयम् श्रस्मादेव ज्ञापकात्-The implication of such a compound, having the sense of 'like this' hidden, is indicated by this Sūtra only.
नहि ग्यस्य अ्रपरं लच्चगां ग्रस्त्त-There is no other rule for the formation of this compound but this indication (as no such compound with the force of द्वव is taught in the chapter on compounds).
By a careful study of this Sūtra with its commentary, we come to know that the compound काकतालीयम् contains two senses of 'दूव = like this' ; the first sense is hidden in the compound काकतालम् and the socond sense is expressed by means of the affix chha in the compound काकतालोयम्.

The compound काकतालम्, if uncompounded, becomes काक: इव, ताल्लमिव which again become काकागमनमिव 'like the coming of the crow' and तालफलपतनमिव 'like the falling of the palm fruit'.

From the sloka quoted above, let us first take the example for the Elliptical Simile, No. 5,-in the omission of the object compared to and the word implying comparison and consider the same.

यत्तया मेलनम् तत् ग्रवितर्कितसंभवं काकतालम् where मेलनम् is the object compared and ग्यवितर्कितसंभवम् is the common attribute. Here, we have only the above two essentials of comparison. The other two-the object compared to and the word implying comparison, are both hidden in the compound काकतालम्. The coming of the person (पुरूषागमनम्) is compared to the coming of the crow (काकागमनम्) and the coming of the lady is compared to the falling of the palm fruit (तालफलपतनम्). The union of these two, i.e., the person and the lady (तयो: मेलनम्) which is the object compared) is like that of the crow and the palm fruit (काकतालसमागमसटृशम्). The word समागमः, the object compared to, and the word, इब, implying comparison, are both omitted. Hence, we have the Elliptical Simile, No. 5,-in the omission of the object compared to and the word implying comparison.

Let us then consider the example for the Elliptical Simile No. 6.

\section*{लाभो मे यश्य तद्रते:}

तदेतत् कारतालोयम् श्शवितर्करतसंभवम् ॥

\section*{Where:-}

लाभ: is the object compared, च्रवितर्कितसंभवम् is the common attribute and the compound काकतालोयम् contains the object compared to, 'डपभोगः eating,' hidden and the word implying comparison expressed by the affix \(छ\) (ईेय) because the compound, if uncompounded, becomes काकतालम् द्वव = *काकदृतातालोपोगसदृश़ः ‘like the eating of the palm fruit by the crow': In this example, we have the above three ingredients of comparison ; and the fourth, the object compared to, is omitted. Hence, this is the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 6,-in the omission of the object compared to.

Now, if we take away the common attribute ग्रवितर्तितसंभवम् from the sloka which contains the examples for the Elliptical Similes Nos. 5 and 6 and substitute in its place 'ग्रभवत् किं ब्रवोमि ते' = 'It so

\footnotetext{
* In the Kāsikä commentary on V. 3. 106, this compound stands in its expansion thus - काकतालवधसटप्र: 'like the death of the crow by the sudden fall of the palm fruit'. The student should note here that this and the other two similar compounds are used to denote the accidental occurrence whether welcome or unvelcome as the case may be.
chanced; what shall I tell you' ; and read the sloka thus :-

\section*{यच्तया मेलनं तत्र लामो मे यग्च तद्रते:। तद्देतरकाकतालीयमभवत् किं ब्रबोमि ते॥}

We have here the omission of the common attribute in the above two examples.

> In the first example :-

मेलनम् is the object compared and, of the other three essentials of comparison, the common attribute is directly omitted, and the object compared to and the word implying comparison are indirectly omitted in the compound काकतालम् as explained before and so we have the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 7,-in the omission of the object compared to the word implying comparison and the common attribute (उपमानवाच कधर्मलुपा).

\section*{In the second example :-}

लाभ: is the object compared and the compound काकतालीयम् contains the object compared to hidden and the word implying comparison expressed in the affix \(\ddagger\) and we have no common attribute ; so we have the example of the Elliptical Simile, No. 8,-in the omission of the object compared to and of the common attribute (उप्रानधमंलुपा).

Thus, in one sloka, we have the examples of the second four Elliptical Similes Nos. 5 to 8. This ornament डपमा is distinguishable from certain other ornaments such as अनन्वय: No. II.-'Comparison Absolute, रूपकम् No. V.-Metaphor, उपमेयोपमा No. III.-Reciprocal Comparison, and व्यरिरेक: No. XX.-Dissimilitude.

In the Rūpaka, the resemblance is suggested whereas it is expressed here. In the Comparison Absolute, only one object is compared to itself. Here, two different objects are compared.

In the Reciprocal Comparison, two sentences are employed; here, only one sentence.

In the Dissimilitude, contrast also is stated, whereas it is not so in this figure.

For other peculiarities of this figure and its varieties according to Sāhityadarpana and Kāvyaprakāsa and for words expressing comparison &c., see the Appendix.
II. ग्रनन्वय:-'Comparison Absolute.'

Drfinition. उपमानोपमेयत्वं यदेकस्यैब वस्तुन:।

\hline to and that compared & अनन्वय: & the figure comparison \\
\hline तत् that & & absolute \\

\end{tabular}

When the object compared to and the object compared are one and the same, or in other words, when one and the same object is compared to itself, it is Comparison Absolute-as in the illustration like ₹न्दुरिन्दुरिव श्रोमान् 'the glorious moon is like the moon itself &c.

अ्रनन्वयः=नास्ति अन्वय: 'connection' यस्य स: = want of connection with any other object in the world in respect of comparison.

The word डूत्यादौ 'et cetera' comprises such other examples as :-

\section*{गगनं गगनाकारं मागर: सागरोपम:। रामराव ायोर्युंघं रामराबगायोरिव ॥}
(As regards spaciousness), the sky is like the sky itself. (As regards vastness), the ocean is similar to the ocean itself. (As regards awfulness), the battle between Rāma and Rāvana is like the battle between Rāma and Rāvana.

Here and in the example given in the text, the self-comparison of the moon, ocean, sky and the battle is to show the non existence of their like.

In this figure, a sameness of terms would be more expedient for the ready understanding of the identity of the object at the very hearing. 'झन्दु: इन्दुरिव' holds better than 'इन्दु: चन्द्र: द्रव' although the latter is a synonym of the former.

\section*{III. उपमेयोपमा-'Reciprocal Comparison.'}

Definition. पर्यायेय हयोस्तच्चेटुपमेयोपमा मता।

धर्म: & (thy) virtue \\
च्रा: दूव & like (thy) riches \\
पूर्ण श्रो: & full \\
घर्थ: & (thy) riches \\
धर्म: दूव & like (thy) virtue
\end{tabular}

Def. That, i.e., the position of Upamāna and Upaneya, when alternated is declared the Reciprocal Comparison.

Ex. In you, O King! thy virtue is as full as (thy) riches; and thy riches as full as thy vertue.

Here, the object of comparing the king's virtue with his riches and again his riches with his virtue excluding the other similar objects is to show that there is nothing else equal to the virtue &c., of the king.

Observe :-This figure is possible only in two sentences as the interchange of comparisons is impossible in one sentence. The Upamāna in the first sentence becomes Upameya in the second and the Upameya in the first becomes Upamāna in the second in the total absence of a third thing to be compared to. But the figure अ्रनन्वय: No. II. is possible in one sentence, the object compared to and that compared being the same in the total absence of a second thing to be compared to.

पतीपम् the figure Converse
Def. The assumption of the object compared to as the object compared, i.e., when Upamāna (moon &c.) is compared to Upameya (face &c.), or in other words, when the usual form of comparison is inverted, it is the Converse.

Ex. (Lady!) The lotus is like thy eyes ; and the moon is like thy face.

\section*{2nd kind of Converse.}

Def. When the subject on hand (face &c.) is disregarded by reason of the gain of another object (i.e., moon &c.) which is not the subject under discourse it is also termed Converse.

Ex. O face! enough of thy pride ; (there is) the moon equal to thee in splendour.

\section*{3rd kind of Converse．}

Def．When the object which is not the subject on hand is disregarded by reason of gain of another object which is the subject on hand，it is declared the third kind of Converse．

Ex．O death！wherefore dost thou bear the pride on account of cruelty；because，there are （many）women equal to thee（in cruelty）．

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The assertion of non-accomplishment of the resemblance of the object not on hand with the object on hand is also termed the Converse.

Ex. O beautiful-eyed lady! The assertion that the lotus has the likeness of thy face is an untrue one.

Hence, we see here that the resemblance between the two objects lotus and face being stated as untrue becomes an unaccomplished one and so it is the Converse.

> 5th kind of Converse.

\hline चपि & also & पद्येन किम् & what with the lotus \\
\hline प्रतीपम् & the Converse & इून्टना किम् & what with the moon \\

\end{tabular}

Def. The assertion 'what is the use of the upamäna' (with reference to the upameya which is the subject on hand) is also considered as one of the Pratipas.

Ex. When the face of that slender lady was seen, what is the use of the lotus or of the moon.

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The gratifying representation of the object compared (1) as non-different from, and (2) as identical with, the object compared to is termed Rūpaka. And each (of the said two kinds) is again three-fold in point of (1) superiority, (2) inferiority and (3) the absence of both.

The Metaphor is first held two-fold :-(1) क्रभेढर्त्पकम् and (2) ताद्रम्यदृपक्. Each of these is again three-fold in point of superiority &c., of the object compared over the object compared to.

Hence the Metaphor is six-fold which are :-
1. ज्रधिकाभेदर्रूपकम्।
4. घ्रधिकतादूप्यर्रूपक््।
2. न्यूनाभेदर्रूपक्।
5. न्यूनताद्रूप्यरुपकम्।
3. प्रनुभयाभेदर्रूपकम्।
6. अनुभयतादूप्यरूपकम्।

Examples of these in their reverse order.

दग्धा: were burnt

Ex. This (king) is indeed the very God Siva in bodily form ; because by him the cities (of his foes) were burnt.

Here, the king, the upameya, who is said to have burnt the cities of his foes is represented as non-different from the God Siva, the upamanna, the destroyer of the three cities of gold, silver and iron of the demon tripura, and in the absence of any superiority or of inferiority between these two objects, we have the example of Rūpaka No. 3.

No. 2. न्यूनाभेदरूपकम्।

Ex. Here stands (before us) this (king), the God Sambhu himself without his third eye.

Here, the king, the upameya, having only two eyes is represented as non-different from the God Sambhu, the upamāna, in the absence of his third eye, i.e., with an inferiority in respect of eyes. Hence, this is the example of Rūpaka No. 2.

\section*{No. 1. ग्यधिकाभेदरुपकम्।}

\end{tabular}

Ex. This (king), the God Sambhu himself, protects the world assuming impartiality (lit. even eyes).

Here, the God Sambhu is said to have assumed two eyes in protecting the world while his third firey eye clever in consuming the world was now removed in as much as his present work is the protection of the world and not consuming. Hence, we have here the superiority, i.e., the protection of the world with reference to the destruction of the world with the विषमदृष्टि uneven eyes or three eyes, and so this is the example of Rūpaka No. 1.

\section*{No. 6. श्रनुभयताद्व प्यरूपकम्।} Ex. ت्रस्या मुखन्दुना लब्बे नेचानन्दे किमिन्दु ना ।

Ex. When the delight of (our) eyes has been attained by (seeing) the face-moon of this (lady), what is the good of seeing the moon.

Here, the face of the lady in question is represented as identical with the moon and in the absence of any superiority or of inferiority between them, we have here Rūpaka No. 6.

\section*{No. 5. न्य नताद्र्व परुपकम्। \\ Ex. साध्वोयमपरा लच्मोरमुधासागरोटिता॥}

Ex. This virtuous woman is a second Lakshm (Goddess of fortune) not born of the Milky Sea.

Here, two different objects, the virtuous woman and the Goddess of fortune, are represented as identical with an inferiority in as much as the former is not born of the Milky Sea and we have therefore here the example of Rūpaka No. 5.

\section*{No. 4. अधिकताद्रूम्यर्पपक्।}

Ex. This face-moon (of this lovely woman) is superior to the spotted moon.

Here, we have the superiority expressed in the example which needs no comment.

(i.e., the eye &c., the subject of superimposition) and serves the purpose on hand (i.e., seeing &c.) it is the Commutation.

Ex. This lady of lovely eyes beholds with her bright eye-lotus.

Here, the superimposed lotus not possessed of the power of beholding is identified with the lady's eye, the subject of superimposition, and is made to serve the purpose on hand, i.e., the act of beholding. In the Rūpaka, as per instance in the sentence 'टुगधं वोच्चे I see the eye-lotus,' the imposed lotus served only to gratify the expression. In this figure, the act of seeing belonging to the subject of superimposition, the eye, is transferred to the object superimposed, the lotus, as in the present example.

Def. When an object is delineated by different people under different characters, it is termed Representation.

Ex. He (God Krishna) was regarded as the God of love by the women, as the tree of paradise by the mendicants, and as the God of death by (his) foes.

Here, the one and the same object is represented as distinct by different beholders on different occasions according to their liking or taste.

> 2nd kind of Representation.

\section*{Der. एकेन बहुछोख्लेखेडप्यसी विषयभेदतः ।} Ex. गुरूर्वचस्यर्जुनोडयं कोत्तों भौष्म: शरासने ॥

Def. When an object is delineated by one person, i.e., by one perciever, under various characters through difference of peculiarities, it is also termed Representation.

Ex. He (the king) is grave (Brihaspati) in speech, white (Arjuna) in fame, and terrible (Bhishma) in bow.

Here, one and the same king is represented as distinct by one and the same beholder but through difference of peculiarities belonging to the object delineated.

\section*{VIII. स्मृतिमान्-Reminiscence or Rhetorical Recollection.}

\section*{IX. भ्र्वन्निमान्-Mistaker.}

\section*{X. सन्देह:-Doubt}

DEF. स्यात् स्म्टतिभान्तिन्द्र हैस दंकालंकृतिनयम् ।

Def. (1) Expressions of a certain object capable of arousing an impression in the mind favouring a recollection, (2) mistaking a certain object to be something else similar to it, and (3) doubting the certainty of an object are respectively termed Reminiscence, the Mistaker and Doubt : Or in other words :-
(1) A recollection of an object, experienced before, that arises from the sight of some other object similar to it, is termed Reminiscence.
(2) The Mistaker is the representation of an هbject, i.e., face &c. as something else, i.e., lotus &c., as suggested by the skill of the poet, on account of the close resemblance of those two objects.
(3) When the certainty of an object under delineation is doubted through poetical skill, it is called Doubt.

Example of Reminiscence.

\section*{पंकजं पश्यतः कांतामुखं मे गाहते सन:}
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
पंकजम् & lotus & कांतामुखम् & the face of the be- \\ पश्यत: & seeing & loved \\
मे मन: & my mind & गाहते & enters, i.e., recollects.
\end{tabular}

Seeing this lotus, my mind recollects the face of my beloved.

> Example of the Mistaker. च्रयं प्रमत्तमधुपस्त्वन्मुखं वेतित पंकजम् ।
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
अघम & this & पंकजम् & \begin{tabular}{l} lotus \\ understands.
\end{tabular} \\
प्रपत्षमझप: & intoxicated bee & वेत्ति & \\
वन्गुखम् & thy face &
\end{tabular}
(Lady!) this intoxicated bee understands thy face to be the lotus (through mistake).

The difference between this figure and the Rūpaka \((\mathrm{V})\) is, that, in the latter, we identify the face with the lotus without mistaking the one for the other, whereas, in this figure, the mistake is clearly expressed as in the foregoing example.

\section*{Example of Doubt.}

\section*{पंकजं वा सुधांशुर्वेत्यस्माकं तु न निर्खयः ।}
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
घघलाकम् & to us & वा & or \\ पंकजन् & lotus & द्रति & so \\
वा & or & नियाय: & decision \\
सुधांग: & moon & न & not.
\end{tabular}

We are not able to decide whether (the object before us) is the lotus or the moon ( nectar-rayed ).

Thus, we see that these three figures are founded upon the close resemblance, of the objects seen and experienced before, that gave rise to a recollection, mistake or doubt.

\section*{XI. अ्यपन्नुति:-Concealment.}

There are six varieties of this figure which are :-
1. श्यद्वापह्गु ति: Concealment pure.
2. हेत्वपद्नु ति: Do. attended with a reason.
3. पर्यस्तापद्रुतिः Do. transferred.
4. भ्रान्ताप悌ति: Do. under a mistake.
5. छकापद्यु ति: Do. of the skilful.
6. केतवाप््ञ ति: Do. of the deceitful.
1. श्याप्रुन्नि:-Concealment pure.

\section*{Def. शुदापझ्नुतिरन्य स्यारोपार्थों धर्मनिझ्नव:। \\ Ex. नायं सुधांशु: किं तर्हि व्योमगंगासरोकह्ह्य्॥}
\begin{tabular}{|c|c|c|}
\hline & of the object not on hand & \begin{tabular}{ll}

\hline ज्ञारीपार्घ: & causing superimposition & किं तर्ं then, what is that \\
\hline धर्मनिद्रव: & denial of the character pure & ब्यीमगंगासरीहहम् the lotus of the celestial Ganges. \\
\hline श्रपप्रुति: & Concealment & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. गुडापघ्लुति: is the denial of the real character (of an object on hand such as moon &c.) for the purpose of superimposing (upon it) the character of another (object lotus &c., not on hand).

Ex. This (the object before us) is not the moon (nectar-rayed) but it is the lotus of the celestial Ganges.

2．हेत्वप苟ति：－Concealment with a reason．
DEF．स एव युत्तिपूर्व श्चेटुच्यते हैत्वमझ्ञुति：।
Ex．नेन्दुस्तोव्रो न निश्यर्क：स्ंधोरोर्वोयमुत्थित：\｜

\hline एघते & is called & 母ीव： & the submarine fire． \\
\hline & & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def．The above，i．e．，the＇Concealment pure＇ when based upon a reasoning，is termed हेत्रपझ्नु निः।

Ex．This is not the moon，（because it is）hot； （not even）the sun，（because it is）night ；but it is the submarine fire come out of the ocean．

3．पर्यस्ताप市 ति：－Concealment transferred． Der．चन्यन तस्यारोपार्थ：पर्थस्तापद्लु तिय्च स：।
Ex．नायं सुधांशु：किं तर्शह सुधांशु：प्रेयसीसुखम्।ः

\hline पर्य－ति： & Concealment trans－ & & loved \\
\hline & ferred & सुधांश： & moon． \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. Paryastāpahnuti is that in which the real character of an object (moon &c.) is denied and the same is superimposed upon another object (face of a damsel).

Ex. This is not the moon (nectar-rayed). Then which is moon? The face of my beloved is the moon (nectar-rayed-not being endowed with burning character).
4. भ्रान्ताप霜 ति:-Concealment under a mistake. DEF. भान्तापद्नु तिरन्यस्य शंकायां भांतिवार्यो। Ex. तापं करोति सोत्कम्पं, ज्वर: किं ? न सखि समरः॥
\begin{tabular}{|c|c|c|c|}
\hline बऩस & of another person & तापम् & hea \\
\hline शंकायाम् & in doubt & करीति & produces \\
\hline भानितारारो & in the removal of the mistake & जर्व: किम् सखि & is it fever? friend ! \\
\hline भान्तापรुত্য়: & it is Concealment under a mistake & न न्यर: & \begin{tabular}{l}

the God of love
\end{tabular} \\
\hline सोत्बं पम् & \begin{tabular}{l} accompanied by trem- \\ bling
\end{tabular} & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When a person is in doubt (i.e., under a mistaken notion as to the real character of an object on hand) and when that doubt is warded off (by the mention of the real thing), it is Bhrāntāpahnuti.

Ex. (It) produces heat accompanied by the trembling of the body* Is it fever? \(\dagger\) No, friend ! It is the God of love. \(\ddagger\)
* Said by a lady pining under separation.
\(\dagger\) Said by her female friend that chanced to be near her.
\(\ddagger\) Reply made by the former to the latter.

\section*{5. केकापद्युति:-Concealment of the skilfuI.}

\section*{DEF. छेकाप्न तिरन्यस शंकातस्तथ्यानिक्षवे ॥ \\ Ex. प्रजल्पन्मत्पदे लग्नः, कांतः किं ? न हि नूपुर: ॥}

Def. When a person (having once given expression to some real object) denies the same (by interpreting it otherwise) for fear of being understood by another person (in its real sense), it is termed the Concealment of the skilful.

Ex. Pratling (something he) clung to my foot.* Is it thy lover ? \(\dagger\) No, no. It is my anklet. \(\ddagger\)
6. केतवाप習ति:-Concealment of the deceitful.

\section*{ \\ Ex. निर्यान्ति समरनाराचा: कांताट्क्पातकौतबात्॥}

व्यती if expressed
कैतवापश्गु वि: Concealment of the deceitful
कान्ताटक्पातक्नकवात् under the semblance of the glances of a damsel
स्मरनाराचा: the arrows of the God of love issue forth

\footnotetext{
* Said by a lady to her confidential companion.
\(\dagger\) Question asked by another lady that chanced to come there at that time.
\(\ddagger\) Reply made by the first lady.

Def. When (the denial of the real character of an object on hand) is clearly expressed by the words of denial व्याज etc., it is the Concealment of the deceitful.

Ex. The arrows of the God of love issue forth ander the semblence of the glances of a damsel.

व्याज = under the semblence of, under the pretext of. अाद्य etc. includes such other words मिष, कपट, छल, छघ्म, केतव।
XII. उत्रेच्चा-Poetical fancy.

\section*{Def. संभावना स्याढुत्त्रे चा वस्तुहेतुफलात्मना। उत्तानुक्तास्मदोदात्र सिद्धार्सद्घास्पदे परे ॥}

बस्नु-हेतु-फलात्मना under the character of (1) nature (2) cause and (3) effect ( of another object )
संभावना imagining
छत्प्रेच्चा स्यात् is Poetical fancy
*त्र of these क्रादा first i.e., वस्तूत्र्प चा उन्त-प्रनुक्त-म्यास्सदा where the occasion of the fancy is mentioned or not mentioned the other two i.e., हैतूत्रेच्चा and फलीत्र्र चा सिद्ध-प्रसिद्ध-क्षास्पदा where the subject of the fancy is an accomplished or unaccomplished one.

Def. The Poetical fancy is the imagining of an object on hand under the character of another object not on hand under three heads, viz., (1) nature, (2) cause and (3) effect. (And thus the figure is first three-fold). Of these, the first वस्तु व्रेच्चा or as it is generally called स्लरूपोत्र्र च्च is two-fold according as the occasion of the fancy is mentioned or not mentioned. The other two, i.e., हेतूब्र्र्चा and फलोत्रे चा are each two-fold according as the subject of the fancy is an accomplished or unaccomplished one.

खरूपोत्रेच्ता is that in which the state, condition or natural appearance of an object is imagined by the poets to be the state, condition or natural appearance of another similar object. हैतूत्प्रे च्र is that in which something is imagined to be the effect of some other thing which cannot form its real cause. फलोव्र्रेच्ता is that in which something is imagined to be the cause of some other thing which is not its real effect.

Example of सरुपोत्र्प त्वा (1) where the occasion of the fancy is mentioned.

\section*{धूमस्तोमं तम: शंके कोकीविर्हशुष्म याप् ।}
\begin{tabular}{|c|c|c|c|}
\hline \multirow[t]{3}{*}{} & the darkness & घูमसीनम् & mass of smoke \\
\hline & गाम the fire of sep- & घंके & 1 suspect \\
\hline & aration of koki birds & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

I suspect (this) darkness to be the mass of smoke of the fire of separation of the kokì birds.

Here, the darkness and the smoke are similar in appearance. The poet is aware that it is darkness. He then fancies it to be the smoke of the fire of separation of the kokī birds which is the occasion of the fancy.

Example of स सरूपोत्प्रेच्ता (2) where the occasion of the fancy is not mentioned.

\section*{लिम्पतीव तमोङ़ानि वर्षतीवांजनं नअः।}
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
तम: & darkness & नभ: & sky \\
अद्रानि & limbs & अझ्ञनम & \begin{tabular}{l} collyrium
\end{tabular} \\
(लिम्पति हूव & anoints as it were & वर्षति हूव & rains as it were.
\end{tabular}

Ex. The darkness anoints, as it were, the bodies, (lit. limbs). Sky rains, as it were, the collyrium.

This is the description of the thick darkness of a particular night. In the first sentence, the subject, i.e., the pervasion of darkness which was fancied by the poet as anointing the bodies is not mentioned. In the second sentence too, the pouring down of the darkness which is the subject of the raining of collyrium is not mentioned. Hence we have two instances of स्रनुत्तास्पदा वस्तूत्पेच्चा where the occasion of the fancy is not mentioned.

\section*{Ex. रत्तो तबांध्रो मृदुलौ भुवि विच्चेपखाद्धुरम् ।}
\begin{tabular}{ll}

\end{tabular} & \begin{tabular}{l} certainly \\ ced.
\end{tabular}
\end{tabular}
( Oh ! Lady), thy soft feet have become red certainly by their treading on the floor.

Here, the treading on the floor is fancied as a cause for the natural redness of the lady's feet; and the redness being an accomplished one, this is an instance of सिद्धास्पदा हैतूत्येच्चा
Ex. त्वन्मुखारेच्छया नूनं पदौनैरारायते शशी।

Oh! Damsel, the moon rivals with the lotuses, surely, with a desire of attaining the loveliness of thy face.

Here, the enmity, between the moon and the lotuses, on account of the latter's contraction on the appearance of the former, is natural, and the cause ascribed to it, i.e., with a desire of attaining the beauty of the lady's face is not real and is due to the fancy of the poet. The cause not being an established one, this forms an instance of श्रमिद्धास्पदा हैतूर्त्र च्चा।

\section*{Ex. मध्य: किं कुचयोर्ध ल्य बड: कनकदासभि:।}
मध्य:
कचददी:
धुल्य

Lady! Is it for the support of thy breasts that thy waist was tied by the golden strings (in the form of the lady's foldings) ?

Here, the lady's breasts are naturally placed above the waist; whereas, the poet describes the natural goldlike folds over the navel of the lady as three golden strings tied round the waist as if to support the breasts. The fact being an accomplished one, this is an instance of सिद्धविपया फलोत्र चा।

\section*{Ex. प्रायोडनं ल्वत्पदेनैकर्यं प्राघ्षुं तोये तपस्यति ।}
\begin{tabular}{|c|c|c|c|}

\hline लब्परेन & with thy foot & प्राय: & perhaps \\
\hline ऐшकम् & the oneness, i.e,, like- & तीये & in the water \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Lady! the lotus does penance in the water perhaps to become identical with thy foot.

Here, the lotuses naturally grow in water, and the poet artfully attributes another cause for their standing in the water, which is no doubt the work of his imagination; and this being an unaccomplished one, it is an instance of ग्रसिद्धविषया फलोत्प च्च।
XIII. भ्मतिशयोति:-Hyperbole.

There are seven kinds of this figure:-
1. रूपकातिशयोक्ति: Hyperbole Metaphorical.
2. मेद्वातित Do. asserting a difference.
3. संबन्बा० Do. asserting a connection.
4. ग्रसंबन्बा० Do. asserting a disconnection.
5. अक्रमा० Do. asserting a want of order.
6. चपला० Do. asserting fickleness.
7. म्यल्यन्ता० Do. of the highest degree.

Of these, No. 1 is two-fold. (a) शुछ्चा-Pure and (b) सापझ्ञवा-founded upon the ornament of Concealment (XI).

\section*{1 (a) भुद्धा रुपकातिशयोति:।}

DEF. रूपकातिशयोंक्त: स्यान्निगीयाध्यवसानत:। Ex. पश्य नोलोत्पलछंहान्वन्नंसंति शिता: शरा: ॥

Def. When the object on hand (i.e., face &c. ther upameya) is swallowed up, or completely taken in, by the upamāna 'moon &c.' through introsusception, and the upameya is therefore comprehended as upamāna itself, or, in other words, (when the upamāna is used for upameya), it is called 'Hyperbole Metaphorical'.

निगोर्य is indeclinable past participle in य of the root गॄ with नि 'to devour'. अध्यवसानत: = अध्यवसान + तस् च्यध्यवसान is the abstract noun formed by adding the and तस् is a termination of the ablative case.

अ्रध्यवसान means the identification of two objects of which the one is the object on hand and the other not on hand in such a manner that the former is completely absorbed into the latter.

When a man comprehendso the face of a damsel as moon itself and calls it by the word 'moon' without mentioning the proper word 'face', then the face 'upameya' is said to have been swallowed up by the moon 'upamāna'.

Ex. Behold! There issue forth sharpened shafts from a pair of blue lotuses.

Here, the speaker, instead of saying 'पश्यकान्ताच्तियुग्मात् कटाच्ता नि:सरन्यहो there issue forth ogles or side-glances from a pair of eyes of this lovely woman who was before him, says thus by using the upamāna words नोलोत्णल 'blue lotus' and शरा: 'shafts' for their corresponding upameya words the अंच्ति 'eye' and कटाचा: 'ogles'. Thus, we have the introsusception of the eyes and the ogles of a beloved lady in the blue lotuses and shafts with which they are respectively identified. *

\section*{1 (b) सापह्न वा रूपकातिशयोfत्ति:।}

\section*{Der. यदापह्नु तिगर्भत्वं सैव सापह्नवा मता ।} Ex. ल्वत्मू त्तिषु सुधा राजन् अांता: पश्यंति तां विधौ।।

सुषा
भांता: infatuated people
ताम् that
विधौ in the moon
पश्सन्ति see.

Def. If the same, i.e., the Metaphorical Hyperbole No. \(1(\alpha)\) is founded upon the ornament of Concealment, then it is called सापहूवा रूपकातिशयोति:।

Ex. O king! Nectar exists in thy good speeches ; but the infatuated people see the same in the moon.

Here, 'the sweetness in the good speeches of the king is the nectar' - is the Hyperbole No. 1 (a) ; because the upamāna 'nectar' is used for upameya 'sweetness'. Again, the nectar which is in the moon is denied and that which exists in the good speeches of the king is called nectar and hence we have the ornament of Concealment also.

\footnotetext{
* This comprehension brings about the superior excellence of the upameya over the upamāna.

\section*{2. भेदकातिशयोत्ति:।}

\section*{Der. भेद्धार्fिशयोर्तिस्तु तस्यैवान्यत्ववर्यानम् ।}

\hline ting a difference & ष्यन्यत् & (is regarded) as an \\
\hline of this (king) & & ther, i.e. strange. \\
\hline ndity & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When the thing described is comprehended as another, i.e., as extraordinary or strange or peculiar, it is called भेदकातिशयोत्ति:।

Ex. Strange is the profundity of this king and strange is his courage also.

Here, the profundity and the courage of the king are considered as extraordinary because a difference is asserted between the profundity and courage of an ordinary man and those of the king.

\section*{3. संबन्धातिशयोत्ति:।}

\section*{Def. संबंधातिशयोर्त: स्याद्योगे योगकल्पनम् ।}

Def, When a connection is asserted where there is really none, it is called संबन्धातिशयोतिः।

Ex. The tops of the mansions of this town kiss the disc of the moon.

Here, the tops do not really touch the disc of the moon ; still they are asserted to do so on account of their extraordinary height.

\section*{4. असंबत्षातिशयोक्ति:।}

Der. योगेडप्यघोगोऽसंबंधातितशयोकिरितोर्यते। Ex. त्वयि दातरि राजन्द्र खर्दु मान्नाद्रियामहे ॥

Def. Denial of connection where there is really a connection is called अ्रसंबन्धातिभयोतित:।

Ex. O best of kings ! As long as thou remainest here, as our liberal donor, we won't devote ourselves to the wish-yielding trees of Indra's paradise.

This is addressed by the mendicants to a king of very liberal donations. They, the mendicants, say that as long as this king is their donor, they sever their connection with the Kalpa tree. Here, the connection of the mendicants with their wish-yielding tree which is, as its very name implies, renowned for its liberality is denied.

\section*{5. भ्रक्रमातिशयोक्ति:।}

Def. न्रक्रमातिशयोक्तः स्यात्सहत्वे हैतुकार्ययो:।
Ex. ग्रालिंगन्ति समं देब ज्यां शराश्च पराश्च ते ॥

\hline दव & 0 king ! & जालिंगन्ति & clasp. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When the cause and effect are said to have taken place simultaneously, or, in other words, when the effect is said to co-exist with the cause, it is called श्रक्रमातिशयोक्तिः।

Ex. O king! Thy arrows and thy foes both clasp the \(j y \bar{a}\) simultaneously.

Observe the pun on the word jya which means 'bow-string' and 'earth.' The arrows are said to clasp the bow-string. and the foes, the earth, i.e., they fall down on earth dead being struck with the arrows of the king. It is usual that cause precedes the effect. Here, the effect, the falling down dead on earth, is said to co-exist with the cause, the issuing of an arrow. Hence, it is called च्रक्रमानिशयोति:।

\section*{6. चपलातिशयोतिः।}

Der. चपलातिश्योर्तिस्तु कार्य्यें हेतुप्रसतिजे।

\hline फघला-तित: & Hyperbole asserting fickleness & अभवत् & became. \\ \hline यामि हूल्यु & ते when said (by the lover) 'I go' & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. If the effect is described to have taken place without the cause, or, literally, if the effect is said to have taken place when the cause was under discussion, i.e., not yet begun, it is then called चपलातिश्योति:।

Ex. No sooner did the lover say 'I shall go' than the ring of his slender lady became her bracelet.

When the lover simply said 'I shall go' but did not actually go, his beloved became so very thin at the very thought of her lover's future separation that the ring of her finger served as bracelet for her hand. Here, the cause was only expressed but did not actually take place and we see the effect is produced without the cause.

\section*{7. अत्यन्तातिशयोतित:।}

\section*{Der. স্रत्यन्तातिशयोतिस्तत्पौर्वर्यर्यव्यतिक्रमे। \\ Ex. च्नये मानो गतः पश्चादनुनोता प्रियेगा सा ॥}

मान: anger

Def. When the relation of priority and posteriority is violated, i.e., when the due order is inverted, or, in other words, when the effect is said to have preceded the cause, it is अत्यन्तातिशयोति:।

Ex. The anger (of the beloved lady) had previously subsided. Afterwards, she was conciliated by her lover.

Here, a lady angry, through love, at the absence of her lover removed her anger at the moment the lover came before her. The lover not knowing the subsidence of the anger of the lady excused himself of his absence which was unnecessary at that stage.

\section*{XIV. तुब्ययोगिता-‘Equal Pairing'.}

\footnotetext{

Def. The sameness of attribute of objects on hand or of objects not on hand, is called तुल्ययोगिता।

\section*{Example of objects on hand.}

The lotuses become contracted as well as the faces of the adulterous women.

This being the description of the rise of the moon, the lotuses are said to contract; and the moonlight being an impediment to the free movements of the harlots, their faces also are said to contract or droop.

Observe :-Here, the lotuses and the faces of the women are the objects on hand and are associated with one common attribute.

Example of objects that are not on hand.

Here, the jasamine &c., the objects unconnected with the subject, are associated with one and the same attribute, that is, the quality of hardness.

Def. The description of the sameness of behaviour towards a friend and a foe is another kind of Equal Pairing.

Ex. (O king !), Parābūti is equally distributed by thee both to thy friend and to thy foe.

परा and भूति: are two separate words meaning immense riches when applied to 'friend'; when taken as one word, पराभूति: means 'defeat' and applies to 'foe' ; however the same word being used to friend and foe, this must be taken as instancing the figure without referring to its meaning.

Observe :-This is possible only under a pun.

Equal Pairing, third kind.

Def. The description of placing one object on a footing of equality with those possessed of superior qualities is termed a third kind of Equal Pairing.

Ex. (O Lord !), Yama, Pāsī, Srīda, Sakra as well as thyself are each a Lokapāla.

Lokapāla \(=\) a regent or guardian of a quarter \(=a\) ruler of earth.

Yama = the God of death, the regent of the Southern quarter.

Pāsī = Varuna, the regent of the Western quarter and of the oceans.

Srida \(=\) Kubera, the regent of the Northern quarter and the God of riches and treasure.

Sakra \(=\) Indra, the regent of the Eastern quarter and the king of the Gods.

\hline ब्बषा: & the learned & महीपति: & Lord of earth \\
\hline दीपकम् & Illuminator & प्रतापेन & by valour. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When objects on hand and those not on hand are associated with a common attribute (mentioned only once), the learned call it the Illuminator.

Ex. The young elephant shines by its ichor and this lord of earth by his valour.

Here, the elephant, the object, not on hand, and the king, the object on hand, are together associated with one and the same attribute, the action of shining. Just as a lamp standing in one place illumines the several objects round it, so in the present figure one finite verb serves as predicate to two or more nominatives. Compare the maxim of the lamp placed over a threshold देहलोदोपन्याय:। It takes its origin from a lamp hanging over the threshold of a house which, by its peculiar position, serves to light the rooms on both sides, and is used to denote something which serves a two-fold purpose at the same time. Apte.

In the Equal Pairing No. 1 (Fig. XIV), the objects on hand if associated with one and the same attribute formed one kind of the figure ; and the objects not on hand if associated with one and the same attribute formed another kind of the same figure (observe the word वा in the Definition). In the Illuminator, the objects on hand and those not on hand are together associated with one common attribute mentioned only once.

\section*{XVI. अवृृत्तिदोपकम्-The Illuminator by repetition.}

DEF. त्रिविधं दीपकावृत्तो अवेदावृत्तिदौपकम् । Ex. वर्षल्यंबुदमालेयं वर्षल्येषा च शर्वरी ॥

वर्षति & looks like a year.
\end{tabular}

निविधम् i.e., by repetition of 1 पद् 'word', 2 अर्थं 'signification' and 3 उसय 'both word and signification'.

Def. By repetition of (1) word, (2) signification and (3) both, we have the three kinds of the figure ग्रावृत्तिदीपक म् ।

Ex. This range of clouds rains and this night looks like a year.

This is the example of No. 1 पदावृृत्ति। Here, the verb वर्षति, a पद, is repeated though with different significations. The first is the form of the third person, singular number, present tense of the root वृष् 'to rain', and the second is the form of the third person, singular number, present tense of the nominal verb derived from the noun वर्ष 'a year'.

\section*{Example of No. 2. अ्यर्थावृृत्ति। उन्मोलंति कदंबानि स्फुटंरत कुटजद्रुमा: ।}

उन्मौलन्ति & blossom & स्फुटन्ति & bloom forth.
\end{tabular}

Ex. The kadamba flowers blossom and the kutaja creepers bloom forth.

उन्मोलन्ति and स्फुटन्ति mean the same thing and we have here a repetition of signification.

Example of No. 3. उभयाव्वृत्ति ।

\section*{माद्यन्ति चातकास्तृप्ता मादांनि च शिखावला: ।}

द्सा:
चातका: मार्यन्ति
sátiated chātaka birds rejoice

शिखावला: peacocks माद्यन्ति rejoice.

Ex. The satiated chātaka birds rejoice and the peacocks also rejoice (at the sight of the clouds).

Here, the same word माद्यन्ति is repeated in the same meaning and hence it is called उभयावृत्तिदीपकम्।
XVII. प्रतिवस्तूपमा-Typical Comparison.

& bute (is expressed) & शूरश्र & and this warrior \\
प्रतिवस्सूपमा & Typical Comparison & चापेन & with (his) bow \\
सता & is recognized & राजते & looks brilliant
\end{tabular}

Def. When, in two sentences one of which describes the object compared and the other the object compared to, the same common attribute is expressed but by different words, it is termed Typical Compariso n .

Fx. The sun shines with intense heat and this warrior looks brilliant with his bow.

Here, the actions of shining and looking brilliant, though mean the same thing, are expressed by different words to avoid the fault of repetition.
XVIII. हृष्टान्तः-Exemplification.

राजन् & O king! \\
लमेव & thou only \\
कीर्तिमान् & possessed of fame \\
विधररव हि & moon only \\

\end{tabular}

Def. If two sentences, one of which contains the object compared and the other the object compared to, stand in relation of type and proto-type, or, in other words, contain similar attributes reflectively expressed, it is called Exemplification.

Ex. O king! Thou art tle only being possessed of fame and the moon is the only object having radiance.

Here, possessing fame and having radiance are similar attributes and the two sentences stand in relation of type and proto-type. The first sentence is exemplified by the second in which a renowned object, the moon, whose radiance has been experienced as excellent, is employed as a type. The difference between this figure and प्रतिवस्तूपमा is that the common attributes here are similar but in the latter they are identical. In the प्रतिवस्तूपमा the couple of sentences terminates in conveying the same sense; whilst in the example of the present figure the sentences have similar sense reflectively expressed and not the same.

\footnotetext{

\section*{XIX. निदर्शना । Illustration (First kind.)}

Def. A description, resulting in the identity of the significations, of two sentences, which are similar, i.e., which terminate in a comparison or șimilarity, is called Illustration.

Ex. That mild nature if possessed by a donor answers to the stainlessness of the full moon.*

Here, the impossibility of the existence of the full moon without the black spot corresponds to the

\footnotetext{
* In Sanskrit, the relative and corrolative clauses are reckoned as two separate sentences.

non-existence of a donor destitude of anger. Thus, we see that the two sentences terminate in a comparison.

The difference between this figure and the वृष्टान्त XVII is that in दृष्षान्त similar attributes are stated whereas here they are not stated. Here, the two sentences employed are dependent upon each other in their meanings but in the दृष्टान्त they are independent.

Def. If a thing is described as bearing the property of another, then it is another kind of Illustration according to certain writers on Rhetoric.

Ex. (Lady!) Thy two eyes bear the charmingness of the two blue lotuses.

3rd kind of Illustration.
DEF. श्रपरां बोधनं प्राहु: क्रिययासत्सदर्थयो:।

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The intimation, by an agent engaged in a certain action, of the unreal and the real state of things signified by the action itself, it is termed the third kind of Illustration.

Ex. "The enemy of a king (moon) will perish"telling this, the darkness, on the rise of the moon, vanished.

Here, the darkness is the agent in the act of intimating to the world the above fact, the result of its own experience which is certainly unreal. This forms the example of unreal state of things.

Example of the real state of things:उद्यनेब सविता पद्मेष्वर्पयति श्रियम् ।

Ex. 'The chief object of one's having riches consists in rewarding his friends'-thus intimating (to the world), the sun, just on its rise, consigns its own treastres (splendour) to the lotuses.

Here, the sun is the agent in the act of intimating to the world the above fact which is real as the lotuses bloom only on the rise of the sun.
XX. व्यतिरेक:-Dissimilitude or Contrast.

DEF. व्यतितेको विशेषश्चेटुपमानोपभेययो:। Ex. शैला दूलोन्नता: संतः किंतु प्रक्टतिकोमला: ॥

Def. If any characterestic difference is asserted between the object compared to and that compared, then it is called Dissimilitude or Contrast.

Ex. Good men are as high as mountains ; but they (good men) are delicate by nature.

Here, we see a similitude between the good men, upameya, and the mountains, upamāna, in one respect and a dissimilitude in another respect.

\section*{XXI. सहोति: । Connected Description or a Speech with सह 'with'.}
\(\mathrm{DEF}_{\mathrm{EF}}\) सहोनि: सह्रभावश्चेद्सासते जनरंजन:।
Ex. दिगंतमगमत्तस्य कीर्ति: प्रत्यर्थिभि: सह्ह ॥

Def. A description of simultaneity or conjunction which will excite a pleasing (poetical) delight in the people's (mind) is called the Connected Description,

Ex. The fame of that king has reached the end of the quarters together with his foes.

Here, the reaching of the fame to the end of the quarters is directly expressed and that of the foes is indirectly expressed by the word सह। सह denotes simultaneity of two actions that are of one and the same kind. The idea conveyed in the present example is that both the king's fame and the enemies reached the end of the quarters at the same time. Thus we see that this figure consists in the description of simultaneous action connected with सह।

\section*{XXII. विनोति:-Speech of Absence or Speech with विना 'without'.}

Def. When an object on hand is represented as inferior in the absence of some other object, it is termed the Speech of Absence.

Ex. In the absence of excellent good behaviour, the learning, though pleasing, is censurable.

\section*{Spsech of Absence, second kind.}

\section*{Def. तच्चेत्किंचिद्विना रक्यं विनोनि: साभि कध्यते ।} Ex. विना खलैर्वर्भात्येषा रोजेंद्र भवत: सभा॥

Def. When an object on hand is represented as charming in the absence of some other object, it is also called Speech of Absence.

Ex. O best of kings! Thy council hall shines splendid in the absence of wicked persons.

\section*{XXIII. समासोति:-Modal Metaphor or Speech of Brevity.}

Dev. समासोति: परिस्फूर्त्ति: प्रस्तुते Ex. श्र्यमैंद्रोमुखं पश्य रत्तश्युंबति चंद्रमा: ॥

\end{tabular}

Def. If, by the description of an object on hand, an object not on hand is apprehended, or in other words, when the description of an object on hand conveys a reference to an object not on hand, it is called Modal Metaphor.

Ex. My beloved! see, this moon becoming red kisses the face of the Eastern (Indra's) quarter.

Here, by the use of the words-(1) चुग्वति the action of which belongs to a human being, (2) चन्द्रमा: in the masculine gender and (3) ऐम्द्री in the feminine gender, we understand that a lover, the subject of discourse, out of passion, kisses the face of some beautiful damsel residing in the east.
XXIV. परिकर:-Insinuator.

\hline बंकार: & figure & व: तापम् & your misery \\
\hline सुष्षंश्रकलि & whose crest has & हरतु & remove. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. A speech with epithets signifying the import (of the speaker) is termed Insinuator.

Ex. Let God Siva whose crest has been adorned with nectar-rayed (moon) remove your misery (lit. mental heat).

Here, the charming epithet सुधांशुकलितोत्तंस: suggests that the heat is removable. This figure occurs even when only one epithet is employed and when that epithet invests the verse with a peculiar charm agreeable to the effect like the present one.

\section*{XXV. परिकरांकुर:-Sprout of an Insinuator:}

\section*{Dex. साभिप्राये विशेष्ये तु भवेत्परिकरांकुरः। Ex. चतुर्यां पुरषार्थानां दाता देवश्यतुर्भुंजः ॥}

\hline रांकर & Sprout of an Insinuator & तनुर्यां पुरषार्थानां of the four objects of human life \\ \hline & is. & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When the noun itself (i.e., without epithets) signifies the import of the speaker, it is called the Sprout of an Insinuator.

Ex. The four-armed God (Vishṇu) is the giver of the four principal objects of life.

Four objects of life are धर्म: 'merit', अर्यं: 'wealth', काम: 'enjoyment' and मोच्:: 'liberation'.

Here, the word चतुर्भुज: is one of the thousand names of the Lord Vishnu and is used here without epithets. The import of the speaker is that God Vishnu alone (being four-armed) is able to distribute the four objects of life.

\section*{XXVI. स्लेष:-Paronomasia.}

Def. Paronomasia is the expression by words having more than one signification referring (1) to an object on hand, (2) to an object not on hand and (3) to both.

Ex. The all-giver Mādhava who held up the mountain (Govardhana on his head) and the earth may protect (you).

\section*{or}

The husband of Umā (Siva) who bore (on his head) the river Ganges may protect (you). सर्वदो माधव: may be split into (1) सर्वदः माधवः and (2) सर्वदा उमाधव:।

\end{tabular}

Def. When the description of an object not on hand conveys a reference to an object on hand, it is called Indirect Description.

Ex. (The chātaka bird) is the only fortunate one, among the birds, which never begs of any other than Indra.

It is a known fact that chätaka bird lives on rain drops and that Indra is the bestower of rain.

Here, the object in question is a noble man who never begs of any man except the Indra-like king and this is conveyed through the description of a chātaka bird which is not the object on hand.

This is not समासोति where a description of an object on hand conveys a reference to an object not on hand ; whilst, in this figure, it is quite contrary.
XXVIII. प्रसुतांकुर:-The Sprout of Direct Description.

Def. When the description of an object on hand conveys a reference to another object on hand, it is called Prastutānkura.

Ex. O Bee! What (is the use of thy amusement) with the (unblown) Ketakī full of thorns while thou hast here the Mālati (Jasamine) flower..

Here, a lady, by the description of the bee's act: with the unblown Ketakī bud witnessed by her in her pleasure garden indirectly intimates the same to her lover, the subject of discourse, who is at present in love with a maiden who has not yet arrived at puberty.
N. B.-The bee and the lover are both objects on hand.

\section*{XXIX. पर्यायोक्तम्-Periphrasis.}

\hline & the description & सुषा & useless \\
\hline प凶्यायोत्रम् & Periphrasis & कतौ & were made. \\
\hline तसे & to him & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When a fact intended to be intimated is conveyed by a circumlocutory speech, or in other words, when a fact intended to be described is expressed by a turn of speech, or, if the intended fact is expressed in a different manner, it is Periphrasis.

Ex. Homage to him (God Vishṇu) by whom the breasts of Rāhu's spouse were rendered useless.

Here, the intended fact is that homage is to the God Vishṇu only, because he was the killer of Rāhu and thus rendered the breasts of Rāhu's spouse useless and this fact has been expressed by a turn of speech, i.e., by different words which do not express it but by words which suggest it, simply for the purpose of giving a particular strikingness to the description.

\section*{Periphrasis-A second kind.}

\end{tabular}

Def. Even the fulfilment of one's own wish under an artful pretext of doing some thing else is also called Periphrasis by some.

Ex. Lovers! I depart hence for the purpose of seeing (my) mango creeper and it shall be stayed here by you both.

Here, the speaker is a female messenger who having united her mistress with her intended lover departs from that place under the pretext of seeing her own chūta creeper so that the couple may freely enjoy in the absence of a third person.

Def. when (1) the praise is understood by apparent censure and (2) censure by apparent praise, it is termed Artful Praise.

Ex. 0 celestial river Gangā! Thou art devoid of judgment in that thou conveyest the sinners to the heaven.

\section*{This is the example of No. 1.}

Here, the real praise has resulted by the apparent censure and it consists in representing the Gangà as taking the sinners to heaven provided they once bathe in her waters.
N. B.-व्याजस्तुति: = व्याजेन स्तुति: Praise by an arti-fice-when praise is understood by apparent censure.

When censure is understood by apparent praise, व्याजस्तुतिः is explained as व्याजरुपा स्तुति: praise consisting in an artifice or a pretended praise.

\hline
\end{tabular}

Well (done) messenger ! what other good than this can again be done ; because thou, on my account, wast injured even by (my lover's) teeth and nails.

Here, the speaker'a lady pining under separation sent her maid-servant as a messenger to her lover and on seeing her returning with marks, in her body, of her having toyed with her (lady's) lord, censures her under pretext of Praise saying that she (lady) was saved by her (the maid servant) from the injury by her lord's teeth and nails ; whereas in fact she was angry when she saw her servant coming single without her lord and was more angry when she observed on her body the marks of sexual intercourse with her own lord. Hence a censure resulted in the apparent praise.
N. B.-This is not अप्रस्तुतप्रशंसा (XXVII), for, in it, there is no strikingness consisting either in censure or praise.

\end{tabular}

Def. When an apparent censure (of an object not on hand) results in the censure (of an object not on hand), it is Artful Censure.

Ex. O Creator ! he (Siva) is to be censured-he that has lopped off only one head of thine formerly.

Here, the speaker, a poor man in very distressed circumstances, fancies himself that, if all the five heads of the God Brahmā were lopped off by Siva, then both the creator and the sufferings of the created would have been simultaneously put an end to. Instead of directly censuring the God Brahmā, the creator, the object on hand, the speaker censured the God Siva, the object not on hand, in having imprudently suffered the other four heads of Brahmā to remain.

\end{tabular}

Def. A denial, after some deliberation, of what has been expressed, is called Hint.

Ex. O moon! Discover thy self (to me). Why? Here is the face of (my) beloved.

Here, we see only a semblance of denial. This: figure is distinct from the Concealment (XI) where the property of an object on hand is denied and that of another not on hand is superimposed upon it.

\section*{A second kind of Hint.}

\section*{DeF. โनषेधाभासमाच्चेपं बुधा: केचन मन्वते। \\ Ex. नाहं दूतो तनोस्तापस्तस्या: कालानलोपम: ॥} of a denial as the figure Hint.

Ex. I am no go-between but the love-fever (residing in ) her (mistress') body, resembling the destructive fire at the end of the world.

Here, the character of a person-that of the gobetween, is denied. The fact of excessive hardship, experienced by the lady under the pangs of separation, which was intended to be conveyed by the gobetween, the speaker, is suppressed in order to suggest more strikingly that the lady is sure to die if her lover delays even for a moment in meeting her.

\section*{A third kind of Hint.}

Def. When the permission (to do some thing) is apparent (in words) but the denial (to do that thing) is hidden, it is a third kind of Hint.

Ex. Departest (thou), my love, if thou art determined to go, and may my rebirth take place in that same place (where thou hast gone).

Here, the apparent permission of going granted by the lady suggests a clear prohibition, the meaning conveyed thereby being that the lover ought to desist from departing from her presence.

Def. When an incongruity (between two things) is apparent (in words*), then it is called Contradiction.

Ex. O slender lady! thy breasts though devoid of pearl necklace are yet possessed of pearl necklaces, i.e., are yet charming.

Here, the apparent contradiction is to be explained by taking the word हारिएी in the sense of 'charming' only.

\hline Peculiar Causation & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When the production of an effect is represented as being without cause, it is Peculiar Causation.

Ex. Lady! thy two feet are red though they were not dyed with red lac.

Here, the contradiction in the red feet without its cause, the lac, is due to the redness of the lady's feet being natural. Therefore, we see that the production of an effect in the absence of its cause is not inconsistent in as much as the denial of a known cause suggests that the effect produced must be natural or is due to some other hidden cause.

\section*{A second kind of Peculiar Causation.}

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When the production of an effect is represented as having taken place while its causes are apparently incomplete, (to produce such an effect), then it is the second kind of Peculiar Causation.

Ex. By weapons, neither sharp nor hard, the God of love conquers the whole world.

Here, the conquest of the world by the God of love is represented as having taken place though his weapons are neither sharp nor hard (being only five flowers) and are therefore quite inadequate to produce such an effect. The contradiction here must be removed by the supposition of some superhuman cause specially gifted by the Supreme Spirit.

\section*{A third kind of Peculiar Causation.}

\section*{Dxs. कार्योत्व्वश्तिस्तृ तोया सा सल्यपि प्रतिवंधके। Ex. नरेंद्रानेब ते राजन् दश्यसिभुजंगमः ॥}

Def. When the production of an effect is said to have taken place though there was an impediment (to such an effect), it is the third kind of Peculiar Causation.

Ex. O king! thy sword-serpent bites only Narendrän, i.e., curers of poisons only (lit. kings).

नरेन्द्र \(=\) king = dealer in antidotes. Here, serpent biting the curers of poison implies an impediment to the effect.

Def. When the production of an effect is represented as being from a different cause, or, more literally, from a similar cause, it is the fourth kind of Peculiar Causation.

Ex. It is a great wonder that this musical sound of a lute proceeds from a conch-shell (i.e., conch-shell-like neck of a damsel).

We know that a conch-shell cannot produce the sound of a lute and therefore this is a Peculiar Causation.
N.B.-We have a Metaphorical Hyporbole in शंख, the upamāna, because it was used for its upameya, the neck of a damsel.

Fifth kind of Peculiar Causation.

Def. When the production of an effect is produced from an incongruous cause, i.e., from a cause quite opposite to the real one, it is the fifth kind of Peculiar Causation.

Ex. Alas ! the rays of the moon (lit. cool-rayed) inflame that slender lady,

This is the state of a damsel, the object on hand, pining under separation from her lover. The rays of the moon have a peculiar charm of exciting the passions of such women and therefore it is said so.

Def. When the cause is said to have been produced from its effect, it is also termed Peculiar Causation.

Ex. O king! An ocean of fame has been formed out of thy hand-kalpataru (wish-yielding tree in the form of thy hand).

Here, the king referred to is Karna renowned for his liberal donations.

The kalpa tree was produced from the ocean at the time of churning. Here, the kalpa tree in the form of the king's hand is said to be the cause of the ocean in the form of the king's fame for his unusual liberality.

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The non-production of an effect when there existed abundant cause (for the same) is called Peculiar Allegation.

Ex. The diminution of oil (lit, affection) did not take place in the heart (of this lady pining under separation) even though the cupid-lamp is burning (there).

Here, the burning of the cupid-lamp, the cause, is present and yet the effect, the diminution of oil, is represented as not taking place. The contradiction can, however, be removed by explaining the word सेने in the sense of 'affection' only.

Def. Improbability is the description of the accomplishment of a truly impossible act.

Ex. Who knew that this shepherd boy would have eradicated the Mountain Govardhana.

The shepherd boy is the Lord Krishna who held up the Mountain Govardhana for seven days as a large umbrella to shelter his beloved Gopīs and their cattle from the heavy and incessent rain caused by Indra to deluge the Gokūla, the land of the shepherds.

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The description of the effect and the cause. as inconsistent and as occupying different locations, is termed Disconnection.

Ex. The poison (lit. water) was drunk by the clouds and the consorts of the travellers fainted.

This figure is only an exception to the ornament of Contradiction (XXXIII) and not Contradiction itself, where the mutual inconsistency of two objects resides in one place ; but in this figure in two different places. The drinking of poison (water) by the clouds and its effect, the fainting of the consorts, take place in two different localities. It is a convention of poets that the women are affected at the sight of the clouds in the rainy season being separated from their lovers who therefore hasten to meet their beloved.

Def. An incongruous effect of an object obtained by an agent engaged to do a quite different thing is termed a third kind of Disconnection.

Lord Krishna who wished to make the earth Apārijātā devoid of the multitude of foes \(\dagger\) made the celestial world so i.e. श्रपारिजाता devoid of Pārijāta tree.

Pārijāta is a celestial tree produced at the churning of the milky-ocean. Krishna at the request of one of his wives Satyabhāmā carried off this tree from Indra's garden (Nandana). A conflict ensued between Indra and Krishna in which the latter was victorious. The tree was brought to the city Dvārakā and was planted in the Satyabhāma's pleasure-garden.

Def. Vishama is a figure where a combination of two incongruous things is described.

Ex. Where this lady with body as soft as the Sirisha flower and where these torments or fever of the God of love.

Here, we see the incongruity or incompatible relation of two things which are opposed to each other, i.e., the nature of the God of love is quite opposed to the nature of the lady, under description, whose body is soft as the Sirīsha flower.

Def. The production of an effect from an incongruous cause is considered a second kind of Incongruity. Or in other words, when the quality of the effect is opposed to that of its cause, it is Incongruity.

Ex. O king! Thy dark sword produces a white fame.

Here, we have white fame arising from the dark sword which has been figured here as the cause in contravention to the general convention-that the quality of an effect must conform to its cause.

> Third kind of Incongruity.
 Ex. भव्याशयाहिमंजूषां दृ्था पखुस्ते न भच्चितः ॥

Def. The attainment of an undesired object from an endeavour made for a desired one is termed the third kind of Incongruity. Or in other words, when a desired object for which an endeavour is made is not obtained but, on the contrary, an unfavourable result is obtained, it is the third kind of Incongruity.

Ex. The rat seeing the snake-basket. (entered into the same) in the hope of obtaining some eatables and was itself devoured by it (snake).

Here, the object of the rat to obtain some eatables for it by boring the basket was not attained and it became a pray to the hungry snake lying in the basket.

Ex. O Goddess of riches! Thy character of resorting to the low (people) is worthy of thyself born of water.

Def. When the object contained is described as vaster than the containant itself (which is really more spacious), it is termed the Exceeding.

Ex. Lord! The waters which contain these mundane worlds could not contain (within themselves all) thy good qualities.

Def. When the containant itself is described as vaster than the vast contained, then we have a second kind of Exceeding.

Ex. How great is the speech Brahman = Vedas, where all these thy good qualities come to an end, i.e., become completely described.

\section*{XLII. घ्रल्पम्-Smallness.}

\section*{DEF. ग्रल्मंतु सूच्ममादाधियाद्यदाधरस्य सूच्मता II Ex. मयियालोर्मिका तेडदा जपसालायते करे॥}

Def. When the containant is described as smaller than the object contained which is really very small, it is called Smallness.

Ex. Lady! Thy ring inlaid with precious stones has become to-day a rosary in thy hand.

Here, the thinness of the hand or the finger which contained the ring is meant. The lady under description was suffering from the pangs of seperation from her lover on a certain day and so her hand or finger, the containant, became so thin that the ring, the object contained, became greater than the hand, the containant, and served as a rosary.
XLIII. ग्रन्योन्यम्-The Reciprocal.

\end{tabular}

Def. When two things benefit each other (by doing the same act causing each other's beauty), it is the Reciprocal.

Ex. The night is splendid by (the presence of) the moon and the moon looks splendid on account of the night.

Here, the night and the moon beautify each other. The night is the cause of the moon looking splendid and the moon is the cause of the night looking splendid.

\section*{XLIV. विशेष:-The Extraordinary.}

\end{tabular}

Def. The description of something dependent, i.e., the object contained as existing without its wellknown supporter, i.e., the containant, or in other words, the representation of the independent existence of the object contained without its supporter on which it depends, is termed the Extraordinary.

Ex. Though the sun has set in, yet its rays abiding in the lamp expel the darkness.

The statement that lamps expel the darkness only by the rays of the sun which has gone to the other side of the earth is Extraordinary.
N.B.-The Vedas declare that the lustre of the sun enters the fire in the evening. Compare Raghuvansa, IV. 1.

\section*{स राज्यं गुरुयादत्तं प्रतिपद्याधिकं बभौ। \\ दिनान्ते निहितं तेज: सविल्नेव हुताशन:॥}

He (Raghu) obtained the kingdom given by (his) father and shone the more just as the fire that got the lustre deposited with (it) by the sun at the close of the day.
N. B.-For Vedic quotations on this, see the Mallinātha's commentary on the verse.

\section*{Second kind of the Extraordinary.}

Der. विशेष: सोडिप यदोकं वस्त्वनेकच्चव सर्यते । Ex. धंतर्वहि:पुर:पभ्वात्मर्वर्द्व्वपप सैव मे ॥

Def. If one and the same object is described as existing in many places, it is also termed the Extraordinary.

Ex. In my mind, in the outside, in the front, behind my back, in all the directions too (wherever I turn my face), only she (my beloved) appears (to me).

Here, one single object is said to exist uniformly in many places.
N.B.-Although these as well as certain other representations are impossible and opposed to ordinary experience, yet they are said to have been represented as possible only metaphorically.

\section*{Third lind of the Extraordinary.}

\section*{DEF. किंचिद्दारंभतोडशक्यअस्त्वंतरदृतिश्च स:।}

Ex. त्यां पश्यता मया लब्बं कल्पदुमनिरोचग्यम् ॥

Def. When some one who has commenced to do an act chances to do another impossible act (unconnected with the former), it is the third kind of the Extraordinary.

Ex. By seeing you, ( O king !) I got the sight of the wish-yielding tree of the paradise.

Here, the speaker who first commenced to do an act, i.e., seeing the king, the liberal donor, says that he has seen the kolpa tree (instead of seeing the king himself who has now been identified by the speaker with the kalpa tree) of the paradise very difficult to obtain.

\section*{XLV. व्याघात:-Frustration.}

प्रोयते & is pleased \\
ते: एव & by the same (flowers) \\
करुमायुध: & the flower-shafted \\
& God of love \\
हंति & torments.
\end{tabular}

Def. When a thing which produces the established result, i.e., the effect natural to its cause is represented to have produced the exact opposite result, it is called Frustration.

Ex. By the (same) flowers by which the people of the world become pleased, Cupid (lit. flower-shafted God of love) torments the world.

Here, the effect, i.e., tormenting is produced by the flowers-the cause, which are well-known to produce a quite opposite one, i.e., pleasure. Hence this is called Frustration on account of the frustration of an established effect already fulfilled in an object.

\section*{Second kind of Frustration.}

\section*{Dre. सौकर्यैगा 个नबघापि क्रिया कार्यववशेधिनी। Ex. द्या चेहाल दूति मय्यपरिलाज्य एव ते ॥}

\hline मयि & on me & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. If a certain act commenced (by one) on the ground of its being facile turns out contrary, it is the second kind of Frustration.

Ex. O King! If thou hast compassion on me, then I, being a boy, should not be abandoned here (now by thee going to battle-field).

This is said by a crown-prince to this king going to war. The king seems to have asked him to stay at home for he being a boy could not bear the terrible toils of a battle field. The crown-prince mentions the same reason to accompany the king for he being a youth must go to the war and become skilled in the arts of war, or, as one commentator says, he (the youth) could not bear the separation from the king. Thus we see the frustration of the object which the king had at first.

Def. When a preceding object is spoken of as the cause of one succeeding it, which in turn is spoken of as the cause of what comes next and so on, it is termed the Garland of Causes.

Ex. From morality wealth (is acquired); from wealth, the donation ; from donation, the wide fame.

Here, the morality mentioned first is spoken of as the cause of the succeeding object, the wealth, which in turn is spoken of as the cause of donation, etc.

This figure occurs also when one object, mentioned afterwards, is spoken of as the cause of what precedes and so on.

Def. A successive series of statements made in a manner in which each succeeding thing is taken (ग्टहीत) as an attribute of each preceding thing and that thing which was first taken as an attribute is made to cease (मुत्त) as such by being afterwards made a subject and qualified by another succeeding thing and so on, it is the Necklace.

Ex. The eyes of that king extend as far as the ears. His ears extend as far as his post-like arms. His post-like arms are charming by their extension as far his knees. And his kness are, in appearance, jewelled mirrors.

Here, the ear's are taken as an attribute of the preceding thing, the eyes; arms, of the ears; knees, of arms; and the mirrors, of the lenees.

In this example, a preceding thing is qualified by the succeeding thing affirmatively. In the following example, the thing mentioned first is qualified negatively by what follows.

> न तज्जलं यन्न मुचारुपद्धजं न पङ्धजं तद् यद्लौनषट्पद्यम्। न षट्पदोडसौ न जुगुज्ज य: कलं न गु'्जितं तन्न जहार घन्मन: ॥ Bhaṭ̣i Kāvya, II. 19.
There was no water on which there were no beautiful lotusses; there was not a lotus in the interior of which there was not a bee reposing; there was not a bee which hummed not sweetly; and there was not a hum which did not attract the mind.

Here, of water, lotuses must be considered as denied ; of lotuses, bees; of bees, humming; and of humming, attraction.

\hline the Serial Illuminator & तेन & by him \\
\hline उच्यत is called & लबड & in thee. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. A combination of the figures, दीपकम् (Illuminator XV) and एकावली (Necklace XLII), is called the Serial Illuminator. Or, in other words, the Serial Illuminator is that wherein a number of different objects is successively associated with one and the same attribute.

Ex. Cupid set his foot in the heart of that lady, and by it, i.e., the heart of the lady, in thee.

This is addressed to a lover by a go-between sent by her mistress pining under separation.

Here, the one and the same attribute स्थिति: .क्वता being associated with two objects प्रक्रत and अ्रप्रद्धत, it is the Illuminator ; and by ग्रहीतमुत्तरीत्या of the lady's heart, it is the Necklace (see the preceding figure). Thus, we have a blending of the two.

Def．Excellence（rising）successively is termed the Climax．

Here，each succeding thing，nectar etc．，rises gra－ dually in excellence．

Def．The Relative Order is a mutual connec－ tion of a series of objects mentioned in their due order．

Ex．O king！Conquer，gratify，destroy（thy） foe，friend and the calamity respectively．

Here，a series of objects शबनुम्，โिन्रम् and विपत्तिम् is respectively connected with जय，रन्जय，and भव्नय in their due order．

Def. When one object is described as residing in many places in succession, it is termed the Sequence.

Ex. Having left the lotus, the lustre of this lovely woman's face now resorted to the moon.

Here, the lustre which is stated as one is said to reside in many places in succession.

Def. Or, if many objects are said to reside in one and the same place in succession, that too is regarded as the Sequence.

Ex. Sand bank is now seen in the place where there was water formerly.

Here, the water and the sand bank are said to be successively residing in the same place.

\end{tabular}

Def. The Return is a mutual exchange of things lesser or greater.

Ex. The king discharged (i.e. gave) one arrow and received (in turn, many) side-glances of the Goddess of wealth of his foes.

Here, we have an exchange for what is greater, i.e. giving the lesser (गरम्) for the greater (कटाच्चान्).
LIII. परिसद्धगा-The Special Mention or The Exclusion of Specification.

Def. The denial of the existence of something in a certain object and the restriction of its existence in another object constitutes the figure the Special Mention.

Ex. The diminution of oil (i.e. affection) was in the lamps and not in the hearts of women of curved eye-brows.
LIV. विकल्प:-The Alternative.

Der. विरोधे तुल्यबलयोर्विकल्पालंकृतिर्मता ।
Ex. सदः: शिरांसि चापान् वा नमयन्तु महीभूज: ॥

Def. When there is an opposition of two things of equal probability, or, in other words, when the perfarmance of two such things becomes impossible at the same time and thus restricts the agent to have recourse to only one of them, it is called the Alternative.

Ex. Let the kings* bend at once their heads or their bows.

Here, we see the impossibility of simultaneous action of the bending of the heads and that of the bows which are opposed to each other, the former being the mark of surrender and the latter, of war.
LV. समुक्धय:-The Conjunction.

\hline सहुचय: & the Conjunction & भर्य त्ति च \(^{\text {® }}\) & and fall down. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The Conjunction is a combination of many actions that are described as being simultaneously produced.

Ex. O King! thy enemies flee, turning their backs, see thee and fall down.

Here, though the actions of fleeing, seeing, falling down took place in succession, yet we have the simultaniety of those actions considering their speedy performance.

Compare the celebrated laconic report which Cæsar sent to Rome concerning his victory over Pharnaces at Tela 'I came, saw, conquered' (veni, vedi, vici).

\end{tabular}

Def. A combination of many things that go to effect a thing with emulation or competition, is also termed the Conjunction. Or, in other words, a combination of many things independent of each other but represented as simultaneously producing the same common effect is called the Conjunction.

Ex. Noble birth, handsome appearance, the prime of youth, learning and the wealth exhilerate him.
LVI. कारकदीपकम्-The Case-Illuminator.

\end{tabular}

Def. A combination of actions that are successively connected with one Kāraka (case-noun) is called कारकढीपकम्. Or, in other words, when the same Kāraka (case-noun) is connected with many verbs in succession, it is कारकदोपकम्.

Ex. The traveller goes, again comes, sees and asks (something).

Here, पान्यः-a noun in the nominative case, is connected with 4 verbs गच्छति, etc., in succession but not simultaneously as in the preceding figure समुच्चय: where simultaniety is desired.

\section*{LVII. समाधि:-The Convenience.}

\hline
\end{tabular} समाधि: The Convenience

Def. When the accomplishment of an act is facilitated by the presence of some other cause, or in other words, when the facilitation of an act is obtained through the accidental operation of another agency, it is called the Convenience.

Ex. No sooner did this young lady long for her lover than the sun set in.

Here, we see the simultaneous occurrence of two actions-the lady's longing for her lover and the sun's setting (expressed by the two चs in the two sentences).

The lady longed for her lover and was about to go to meet him ; and this was easily accomplished by the accidental operation of another cause-the , setting of the sun, which enabled the lady to set out freely under the protecting mantle of the dark.

पराक्रम: attempt प्रल्यनींकम् The Rivalry

उत्पलाभ्याम् by the lilies
जै न्रनवानुगी the servants of the victorious eyes
कर्णों the ears
अध: क्रती made to bow down.

Def. When any act of injury or mortification is attempted on a partisan of one's powerful enemy (by somebody who is unable to avenge himself directly on his enemy), it is called the Rivalry.

The ears, the servants (lit. neighbours) of the victorious eyes, have been made to bow down by the lilies. Woman's eyes and lilies are often compared to each other, the one excelling the other in beauty. Here, the lilies unable to conquer the eyes avenge themselves on their neighbours, the ears, by making them bend down.
N.B.-The lilies are usually worn as ornaments on the ears which bend by their weight.

\section*{LIX. काव्यार्थापत्ति:-The Necessary Conclusion,}

\section*{DEF. कैमुल्येनार्थसंसिस्ञि: काव्यार्थापर्तिरिष्यते।}

\section*{Ex. स जितम्बन्मुखेनेन्दु: का बार्ता सरसीकुत्हास् ॥}

Def. The accomplishment of an act founded upor the popular maxim क्मुतिकन्याय: 'argument with a stronger reason', is termed the Necessary Conclusion.

केमुत्य is the abstract noun of किमुत 'how much more'. कौमुतिकन्याय: is usually called दराडापूपन्याय: the maxim of the stick and the cakes. When a stick and some cakes are tied together and, when the stick has been eaten away by a rat, we are naturally led to believe that the cakes also have been eaten by the rat, the two things being so closely connected. Thus, when we say something of the one of two such things, the same naturally applies to the other thing also.

Ex. (Lady!) That moon has been conquered by thy face. What necessity is there to speak of (or why we speak of) lotuses.

It is an acknowledged fact that lotuses begin to shrink and become faded on the rise of the moon. When that moon, the subduer of the lotuses, has been conquered, the fact that lotuses too have been conquered much more becomes a necessary conclusion.
LX. काव्यलिंगम्-The Poetical Reason.

Der. समर्थ नीयस्यार्थस्य काब्यलिंगं समर्थनम् ।
Ex. जितोडसि मन्द कन्दर्प! मर्चित्तेडसित व्रिलोचन:॥

Def. The Poetical Reason is a reason justifying a statement which requires to be established.

Ex. O foolish God of love! Thou hast been conquered (by me). For, in my mind, there resides the three-eyed God Siva.

Here, the fact of the presence of the God Siva in the mind of the speaker is a reason for the speaker's conquest of the God of Love who has once been burnt by Siva.

Ex. हनूमान㕍मतरहुष्करं किं महात्मनाम् ॥

Def. The assertion of a universal (proposition) and a particular (instance) is termed the Transition. Or, in other words, when a universal proposition is introduced to support a particular instance, or a particular instance to support a universal proposition, it is called the Transition.

Ex. Hanūmān crossed the ocean ; what is impossible for great men ?

Here, a particular instance is confirmed by a universal proposition.

Example of a universal proposition supported by a particular instance.

Even the meanest creature, by the association of the meritorious, attains to the greatness. A thread anited with a wreath of flowers is worn on the head.

Here, a universal proposition is confirmed by a particular instance.
LXII. विकस्वर:-The Expansion.

DEF. यर्स्म्मन्विशेषसामान्यरवश्शेषा: स विकस्वर:।
Ex. स न जिग्य महान्तो हि दुई्घणा: सागरा दव ॥

यन्बिन् in which
विशेषस्डमान्यविशेषा: particular, general and particular assertions
स: that विकस्वर: the Expansion

स:. that (king)
न जिग्य was not conquered
㞓 because
महान्त: great men

Def. When a particular is supported by a general which again is supported by, a particular, it is called the Expansion. Or, in other words, when a Transition in which a particular instance is supported by a general proposition with a Simile, it is termed the Expansion (of the Transition).

Ex. That (king) was not conquered (by his enemies). For the great men are as unassailable as the oceans.
LXIII. पौढ़ोति:-The Bold Speech.

\section*{Def. प्रोढ़ी干िक कूत्कर्षाहे तौतड तुल्वप्रक ल्पनम्।}

Ex. कचा: कर्लन्द्दातौरतमाल स्तोममेचका: ॥

Def. The attribution of a certain cause, to a statement asserted, which cannot form the cause of excellence (of the object described) is called the Bold Speech.

Ex. The tresses (of the Lord Krishna) are as black as the group of tamāla trees grown on the banks of Kalinda's daughter Yamunā.

The water of the Yamunā is naturally black as also the tamāla trees. The blackness of the tamāla trees cannot therefore be attributed to their having grown on the banks of the Yamunā river. Still, it is asserted to be so here. Hence it is called the Bold Speech.
LXIV. संभावना-The Supposition.
\(\mathrm{DEF}_{\mathrm{EF}}\) सम्भावना यदौत्थं स्यादित्यूहोडन्यस्य सिद्घये । Ex. यदि शेषो अवेहत्ता कथिता: स्युर्गुणास्तव ॥

Def. A conjecture assumed through the use of the expression 'if it were so' for the accomplishment of another (impossible) act, is termed the Supposition.

Ex. O God! If the Lord of the serpents were to be the narrater, then all thy merits would have been described.

This form of supposition introduced by a subjunctive clause is reckoned by the author of Kāvyaprakāsa as the third kind of अ्रतिशयोति.
LXV. मिथ्याध्यवसिति:-The False Determination.

Drr. किन्चिन्मिथ्याप्वर्वसछ्यर्यं मिथ्यार्थान्तरकल्पनम्। Ex. मिथ्याध्यर्वर्सित्वेश्यां वशयेत् खस्तजं वहन् ॥
\begin{tabular}{l|ll}
किचिन्मिध्यात्वसिद्यार्थ for the purpose \\

\end{tabular}

Def. When, for purposes of establishing a false assertion, another absolute false one is introduced, or, in other words, if one false assertion is made to depend upon another absolute false one, then it is called the False Determination. (Reductio ad absurdum = reducing a position to an absurdity).

Ex. Wearing a garland of sky-flowers, one can win over a prostitute.

Sky-flower is an absolute nonentity and does not exist in any period, past, present or future. So the winning over a prostitute becomes also a non-entity. This ornament is also reckoned as one of the kinds of श्रतिशयोति by the author of K. P.

\section*{LXVI. ललितम्-The Artful Indication.}

\hline incident on hand & सेतुम् & bund \\
\hline वर्शीनम् delineation & चिकीषोंति & wishes. \\
\hline ललितम् सात् is the Artful Indica- & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. ललितम् is a delineation of an incident not on hand which ends in a reflective comparison to an incident on haud.

Ex. This (maiden) wishes to raise a bund when all the water had gone out.

This is said by a maid to her mistress who wanted to send for her once neglected lover. The maid instead of telling her mistress that she missed the opportunity and now foolishly wants to bring her lover who has now fallen in love with another lady indirectly intimates the same meaning which is reflec-, tively represented in the expression given in the text. The sending for the lover who once came to the lady, and was neglected by her is the same as the raising of a bund after all the water had gone out.
LXVII. प्रहर्षंएम्-The Enrapturing. DEF. उत्कराएठतुार्थसंसिधिरिना यनं प्रहर्षयाम् । Ex. तामेत्र ध्यायते तस निस्म निष्टा सैव टूात का।

Def. When the accomplishment of a thing eagerly longed for takes place without any effort for it, or, in other words, when the desired object is obtained by chance, it is called the Enrapturing.

Ex. That same messenger-a confidante-was sent (by a lady) to him (her lover) who was thinking of her only.

This incident took place without any effort on the part of the lover. He was thinking that her lady would send him a disagreeable messenger and, when he saw his own confidante coming as a messenger to him, he could not contain for joy and hence this is called the Enrapturing-the delight beyond measure.

The Second kind of the Enrapturing.
Def. वान्छकतादिधिकार्थस्यु संसिसिश्य प्रहर्षयाम्।

\hline पहरंषणग् & the Enrapturing & राव: & the sun \\
\hline याबत् & no & अम्युदित: & rose. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The attainment of something more than what was desired is called the second kind of the Enrapturing.

Ex. No sooner did she kindle the lamp, than the sun rose.

Here the lady rose and wanted to kindle the lamp and, when she came out of her room, she saw the sun risen. This is more than what was desired.

Third kind of the Enrapturing.
Dкr. यब्नादुपायसिद्धर्थात्म Iचाब्लाभ: फलस्य च। Ex. fनध्यन्जनौषधीमूलं खनता साधितो निधि: ॥

Def. When, by an effort made for the attainment of a means to get the object desired, the desired object itself is obtained, it is the third kind of the Enrapturing.

Ex. By him who dug the root of the magic plant for the purpose of discovering the treasure hidden under the earth, the treasure itself was obtained.
LXVIII. विषादनम्-The Despondency.

\end{tabular}

Def. The attainment of a thing quite opposed to what was desired is termed the Despondency.

Ex. No sooner did she kindle the lamp, than it extinguished.

\section*{LXIX. उत्कास:-Abandonment.}

\section*{Def. एकस्य गुएादोषाक्यामुद्लासोडन्यस्य तौ यदि । Ex. च्राप मां पावयेत्साध्वो सात्वेतोच्छात जाछ़की ॥}

Def. If the delineation of merit and demerit of one object conveys a reference to the merit and demerit of another object, or, in other words, if (1) the merit of one object refer to the merit of another object, (2) the demerit, to the demerit, (3) the merit, to the demerit, and (4) the demerit, to the merit, then it is called the Abandonment.

Ex. 'Will not a chaste woman (come and) bathe (in my waters) and purify me also', so the river Gangā desires.

Here the merit-the purificating character of a chaste woman refers to the merit of the Gangā who prays for purification. Hence this is the example of No. 1 nierit referring to a merit.

\section*{काणठन्यं कुचयो: सृष्टं बान्छन्यः पादपद्मयो:।}

अरियोषित: the women of (thy) foes ल्बडाटोषु in thy cavalry विधातारम् the Creator निन्दंति censure.

Ex. O king ! the widows of thy foemen desiring, (when they are pursued by) thy cavalry, the hardness created for their bosoms to be created for their lotuslike feet censure the Creator (Brahmā).

Here, the widows of the foemen censure the creator for not having created the hardness of their bosoms in their soft feet, the former being useless because of their widow-hood and the latter being now useful to enable them to flee away from the pursuing cavalry of the king. The denerit of the bosoms in their widow-hood refers to the demerit of their soft feet unfit for fleeing away from the enemy.

Example of (3) Merit referring to a demerit.

Ex. It is the misfortune of riches themselves in that they do not resort to the good people.

Here, the merit of the good people refers to the demerit of the riches in their not resorting to the good people.

\section*{लाभोगमेव मूपालसेवकानां न चेछ्वध: ॥}

If the servants of this king are not killed, then it itself is a boon (to them).

The king referred to is such a cruel man that nonkilling his servants is considered a great boon even if they do not get their pay. Here, the cruelty, the demerit of the king, refers to the merit on the part of his servants, i.e., their continuance without being killed.

\section*{LXX. ग्यवज्ञालंक्रति:-Non-Abạndonment.}

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. If, by the delineation of them, i.e., merit and demerit of one object, they-the merit and demerit of another object-do not occur, then it is called the Non-Abandonment.

Ex. This measure (of 32 palas) gets only a small quantity into it even though it reached the ocean.

The particular measure holds the same quantity of water even in the ocean which is the receptacle of immense water and which is not able to supply more water.

Here, the merit of the measure 'refers to no merit of the ocean.

Example of demerit occasioning no demerit.

\end{tabular}

Def. The praying for an undesired object on the ground of the acquirement of virtuous qualities resulting from it, is called the Permission.

Ex. Lord Krishna! Let calamities always occur to us-the calamities in which the God Hari is glorified.

This is a request made to Krishṇa by Kunti, the mother of the Pāndavas.
LXXII. लेश:-The Suggestion.

DEF. लेश: स्याद्रोषगुगयोर्गुगाद्रोषत्वकल्पन म्। Ex. घर्मर्बलेषु विहङ्सेषु हन्त सच्छन्दचारिषु ॥ शुक्र! पञ्जरबन्धस्ते मधुरागां गिरां फलम् ॥
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
दोषगुण्यो: of demerit and merit & गुक ! & parrot! \\

\end{tabular}

Def. लेश: is a figure in which the merit and demerit of one thing are respectively construed to be the demerit and merit of the other.

Ex. Alas! parrot! when all other birds freely wander about at their will, thy confinement in the cage is the result of thy melodious songs.

Here, the utterance of melodious sounds is construed to be a demerit in a parrot and the non-utterance is construed to be a merit in other birds.

\section*{LXXIII. सुद्रा-The Sealing.}

\end{tabular} & the Sealing \\
सा तरुणी & that young maiden
\end{tabular}

Def. If the words that serve to signify the sense on hand intimate also the object to be hinted at, then it is called the Sealing.

Ex. This maiden has large buttocks and a couple of spacious eyes.

Here, युग्मविपुला serves to signify the sense required for the description of the lady the subject on hand. The same word is also the name of a metre of ग्रनुष्टुम् class containing 8 syllables for each quarter wherein the seventh syllable of the 2nd and 4th quarters must be short. Thus, we see that the same word that served the purpose on hand-the description of the lady-also names the metre of the verse to be hinted at by the poet, the stanza being the illustration of that metre.

It is usual among the Sanskrit prosodians to illustrate a metre, defined, by a stanza contaiuing the name of that metre which will also serve to explain the sense contained in the stanza. Hence the figure is called मुद्रा-an expression of things by their right names.

\section*{LXXIV. रबावली-The Jewelled Necklace.}

\section*{Def. क्राभमकं प्रदृतार्थfनiं न्यासं रत्नावलीं विढुः । Ex. चतुरास्य: परतर्लेच्म्मा: सर्वंज्तस्त्वं महीपते ॥}
\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
प्रकार्थानाम् & of the words serving & चतुरास्स: & * having handsome \\

\end{tabular}

Def. Ratnāvalī is a figure containing a number of words serving the sense on hand but put in an established order of succession (with reference to objects not on hand).

Ex. O Lord of earth ! thou hast a handsome face (art god Brahma \(\bar{a}\) ) ; thou art the lord of wealth (the Lord Vishṇu) ; thou art omniscient (Lord Siva).

Here, the words चतुरास्य: etc., serve the sense on hand in describing the king and are also names of the Hindu Triad, in their order-Brahmä, Vishnu and Siva, the objects not on hand to which the king is identified in succession.

The difference between this figure and the figure मुद्रा (LXXIII) is that in this figure the sense of the words referring to objects not on hand-i.e. the sense to be hinted at-also serves to explain the sentence in another way under a pun, but it is not so in the Mudrā.

Def. When a thing quits its own quality and assumes that of another (excellent one), it is the Borrower.

Ex. O Lady! The pearl of the nose-ornament becomes a padmarāga ruby by coming in contact with the luster of thy (red) lower lip.

Here, the colour of the lady's lower lip, being superior, makes the white pearl of her nose ornament appear like a padmarāga ruby. *

\section*{Der. पुन: सगुयासंप्राप्तिः पूर्वरुपमुदाहृतम् । Ex. हरकराठांभुलिप्तोऽपि शेषस्त्वश्यसा सितः ॥}

Def. When an object that has quitted its form as in the preceding figure is again restored to its original state by the presence of some other agency, it is called the Original.

Ex. O king! The lord of the serpents शेष:, though covered with the lustre of Siva's neck, is made white by thy fame.

Here, the serpent-lord worn round Siva's neck of dark-blue colour-on account of the existence of the Kālakūta poison in it-changed his colour and thus became a borrower and by the operation of another agency-the white fame of the king-he is restored to his former state.

Second kind of the Original.

> Der. पूर्वावस्थानुव्वत्तिश्य विक्षते सति वस्तु नि । Ex. दोपे निर्वापितेऽप्यासील्कांचोरत्नै मे हन्मह: ॥

Def. The continuity of the original condition, notwithstanding the disappearance of an objectthe cause of such continuance, by the operation of another agency, is called the second kind of the Original.

Ex. Although the lamp was put out (by a lady in the bed chamber), still there was ample light issuing from the jems of the girdle (of that lady).

Here, a pretty young maiden but an artless one ( मुग्धा ) put out the lamp of the bed chamber through bashfulness ; still the light continued as before by the lustre of the jems inlaid in the girdle of that maiden.

\section*{LXXVII. घ्रतनुग:-The Non-Borrower.}

Def. The non-assuming, by an object, of the quality of another though connected with it (or in other words, when an object does not borrow the quality of another object, it) is called the NonBorrower.

Ex. O Lover! though seated long in my red (affectionate) mind, yet thou dost not become red (affectionate).

The strikingness of this example rests upon the use of the word राग which means both redness and affection.

Here, the lover does not become red (affectionate) though he is seated in the red (more affectionate) mind of the lady. Hence it is the Non-Borrower.

\section*{LXXVIII. षनुगुण:-The Conformity.}

Def. The pre-eminence, of one's own previously settled quality, by the presence of another agency, (or, in other words, when the original quality of anobject is made pre-eminent by the proximity of another object, it) is called the Conformity.

Ex. The blue lotuses attain more blueness by the side-glances (of a lady falling on them):

Here, the dark blue lustre of the lotuses is increas. ed by the pre-eminent blue side-glances of the lady falling on them.
LXXIX. मीलितम्--The Lost.

DEz. मीलितं यदि सादृश्याद्भेद् एव न लच्चते Ex. रसो नालचि लाच्चायाश्चर्यो सह्रारुणो ॥

Def. When distinction alone is nọt perceived (between two objects on hand) on account of their resemblance, then it is the Lost.

Ex. The dye of the red lac was not perceived in the naturally red feet (of this beautiful maiden).

Here, we see the disappearance of the dye of the red lac on account of its having been eclipsed by the natural redness of the maiden's feet.

Def. When any distincuishable peculiarity whatever is not perceived (between two objects coming in contact) on account of their close resemblance, it is called the Sameness.

Ex. The faces of the women of beautiful eyebrows that entered the lotus-pool are not perceived.

Here, the faces of the women were not distinguishable from the lotuses in the absence of any discriminative quality between the two which are spoken of as having become identical.

In the मीलित (LXXIX), one of the objects is inferior in quality and is not apprehended by its being eclipsed by the superior quality of the other.

In this figure, the two objects could not be discriminated through their close resemblance. In the मीलित, the inferior object gives up its own quality. Here both the objects do not give up their qualities. Hence, this figure is different from the मोलित.

Def. If any discriminating peculiarity prohibited in the सामान्य become manifest afterwards, it is called the विशेषक:.

Ex. O king! The celestial beings recognize the Himälaya mountain, eclipsed by thy (all-pervading) fame, through its chillness.

This is the example of the figure उन्मोलित. Here, the Himälaya which is white was lost in the whiter fame of the king and was afterwards recognized by the Gods on account of its chillness.

Def. A secret reply containing some indirect import (of the speaker) is called the Reply. Or, in other words, when the speaker indirectly expresses his or her own intention in a reply made to a query previously put by some person (which query is to be inferred from the answer), it is called the Reply.

Ex. O Traveller ! (the place) where that ratan is seen-there this river is fordable.

From this, we understand that a traveller has asked the speaker, a lady here, the place where a particular river can be crossed. The lady becoming enamoured of him makes this reply by showing a particular place which was also indirectly named by her as a place of assignation for their meeting.

Def. When a skilful reply is not different from the query, or in other words, when a reply made consists of the same words of the question asked, and when one reply made serves for two queries asked, then it is called also the Reply.

Ex. Q. Who are those that are engaged in maintaining their wives ?-R. Those that are bent upon bringing the lands to perfection or husbandmen. Q. Who move in the air and which is transitoryR. वय: (1) birds (2) age.

के दार:=a field. The first question के दारपोषयारता: and its answer केढारपोष्यरता: consist of the same words (lit. letters). वय: is the one reply made to the two questions asked. वय: when it means, 'birds' is the nominative plural of the word वि \(m\); and when it means 'the age' it is the nominative singular of the neuter noun वयस्. Hence these are styled the skilful replies.

\end{tabular}

Def. A significant act or gesture, of a person, intimated to another who is able to understand such gestures of others is called the Subtle.

Ex. (Friend!) When I was seeing (her anxiously for time of assignation), she concealed her crestjewel under her tresses.

Here, the time of assignation eagerly inquired for by the lover is guessed from the lady's act of concealing her bright crest-jewel under her dark tresses-a mark indicating the time of night when the bright sun is concealed under the darkness of the night.

\section*{LXXXV. पिहितम्-The Covering.}

\end{tabular}

Def. A significant act or an insinuation of a person that he or she knows the secret of another is called The Covering.

Ex. Early in the morning, when the lover came to the house, his lady prepared bed (for him).

Here, a lady when she saw her husband coming to her house in the morning with the marks of his having toyed with another lady, a rival one, at once prepared bed for his rest thus intimating to him that she has known his secrets.

\section*{LXXXVI. व्याजोति:-The Disembler.}

\section*{DEf. व्याजोfितन्यहेतूक्त्या यद्वाकारस्य गोपनम्।}

Ex. सरिव ! पश्य ग्टहारामपरागैरस्म धूसरा ॥

\hline गै|पनम् & concealment & धूसरा काष & I am made greyish. \\
\hline ख्याजीक्ति: & The Disembler & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. The Disembler is the dissimulation of one's appearance by attributing to a different cause.

Ex. Friend! See I am made greyish by the pollens of (my) house-garden.

Here, a lady, the speaker, having her body made dirty by the dust in her toying with her lover, artfully conceals the same by saying that she was made greyish by the pollens, i.e., by attributing it to some different cause. Her first state was not expressed and then denied and so this is different from the ornament of Concealment (XI) where an object is first mentioned by a person who then conceals it.
LXXXVII. गूढ़ीन्ति:-The Secrecy.

Der. गढढ़ोत्तिरन्योद्देश्यं चेद्य द्न्यं प्रति कध्यते । Ex. वृषापेfि परनेनादायार्व च्चेनरन्तकः ॥

\hline गुढ़ीति: & The Secrecy & & band \\
\hline 㫙! & O bull! or luster ! & भायरणि & comes. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. When a speech intended to be communicated to a particular person is addressed to another who is also before the speaker, and when that speech conveys also the intended meaning of the speaker, it is termed the Secret Speech.

Ex. O bull! begone, yonder comes the landlord.

This speech is intended to be communicated to a person toying with the wife of another person and this is addressed to the bull that was grazing in a third man's field. The intended meaning to be conveyed is :-

O Luster! begone, yonder comes the husband of the lady with whom thou art boldly toying. )

\section*{LXXXVIII, विद्टतोनित:-Open Speech.}

\begin{tabular}{ll|ll}
श्निष्टुप्तम् & hidden under a pun & परचेवात् & from another's field \\
कविभा & by the poet & & or wife
\end{tabular}

Def. Open Speech is that which is hidden under a pun as in the preceding figure but purposely expressed by the poet by some kind of indication.

Ex. "O bull! begone from another's field", so the speaker speaks with a gesticulation.

By use of the word वृषापेशि, this is also hidden under a pun; and, by the employment of the word ससूचनम, in the example by the poet, the secrecy becomes expressed.
LXXXIX. युत्ति:-Covert Speech.

\section*{DrF. युक्ति: परातिसंधानं क्रियया मर्मगुप्तये ।} Ex. त्वामालिखन्ती हृष्ट्वान्यं धनु:पौष्पं करेडलिखत् ॥

\hline तिसंधा & deception played upon & पौषं धनु: & owery bow \\
\hline & another & करे & he hand \\
\hline गुक्ति: & Covert Speec & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. Covert Speech is a deception of a person by an act played upon another for concealment of his or her own design.

Ex. Lover! Thy lady painted thee and, seeing another person coming to her at that time, drew the figure of a flowery bow in the hand, thus intimating to that stranger that she painted the cupid and not thee.

This is said by a go-between.
This figure is properly reckoned as one of the kinds of सूष्ष्म (LXXXIV) in the Sāhitya Darpana.

\section*{XC. लोकोक्ति:-Popular Saying.}

\hline बोकीत्तिरिति & opular Saying & कतिचित् माबान् a few mont \\
\hline एयते & called & 『्र wait or be \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. An expression resembling a proverb is called the Popular Saying.

Ex. Lady! wait for a few months with thy eyes closed.

This is one of the messages sent by a separated lover to his lovely wife. The full meaning is :-
"Lady! Let a few months be spent unmarked by thee ; and then we shall both meet, and have full scope to reward our desires entertained in our separation. "With thy eyes closed" is even now more current in the sphere of the lovers and distressed people.

\section*{XCI. छेकोलि:-The Skilful Speech.}

\section*{Dvy. छेकोष्तिर्यदिद लोकोत्तो: स्यादर्थान्तरगर्भरता।} Ex. भुजङ্न एव जानौते भुजख़न चरणां सखे ॥

Def. If the Popular Saying were to contain another sense, then it is called the Skilful Speech.

Ex. A serpent alone knows the feet of a serpent. Another sense is :-A villain alone knows the behaviour of a villain.
XCII. वक्रोति:-The Crooked Speech.

Def. वक्रोfित्त: श्नेषकाकुभ्यामपरार्थप्रक ल्प नम्॥ Ex. मुग्च मानं दिनं प्राप्तं नेह्ध नन्दी हगर्गन्तके ॥

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. when a person construes a speech of another in a different sense by means of a pun or by an affected change of voice, it is called the Crooked Speech.

Ex. Lady! Remove thy anger as day has appeared.

Here the lady construing it otherwise by a division of words मानं दिनम् into मा नन्दिनम् and reading it thus "मुघ्य मा नर्दन्दन प्राप्तम् = leavest not the Nandin that has arrived here" angrily replies thus, "No Nandin here ; bnt he is near the God Sīva."

For an example under काकु, see the Appendix.

\end{tabular}

Def. Description of Nature is the delineation of of a peculiar state of an object belonging to a genus etc., i.e., a quality, an action and a substance.

Ex. These antelopes having tremulous eyes and pricking up their ears behold!

As the term 'antelopes' denotes many, we have here the description of nature of a genus.

Another name of this figure is जाति: according to Dandi. This kind of description is cousidered the best by the poets.

\end{tabular}

Def. When something past or future is delineated by a poet in such a manner as can bring the subject of description vividly before the mind's eye, it is called the Vision.

Ex. The gods and demons fight in this placeeven now I seem to behold it!

\section*{XCV. उदाष्तम्-The Exalted.}

\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. A description of prosperity of an object is termed the Exalted.

And any commendable action of some great personage represented indirectly or collaterally to the object under delineation is termed also the Exalted.

Ex. This is that Himälaya Mountain in whose summit that celebrated fight between the God Siva and Arjuna took place.

Here, the celebrated fight of the great God Siva with Arjuna is represented collaterally to the Himālaya Mountain-the object under delineation. This kind of representation attaches much importance to the subject on hand-now the Himalaya Mountain.

For an example of Prosperity, see the Appendix.
XCVI. अत्युकि:-The Exaggeration.

\hline बर्षमम & description & भबान्त & become. \\ \hline vxูfin: & Exaggeration & & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}

Def. A description of marvellous and also false statement of one's valour, generosity, etc., is called the Exaggeration.

Ex. O king! When thou art a donor, even the wish-yielding (kalpa) trees of paradise become thy mendicants.

This is a false exaggeration of a king's liberal munificence.

\section*{XCVII. निरुत्ति:-Exposition.}

निषनि: Exposition ( चन्द्र !

Def. Exposition consists in construing words, in a sense different from what is intended, by an artificial derivation of those words.

Ex \(O\) Moon! By these acts of thine, I know, truly, as much that thou art faulty (lit. the mine of faults).

This is addressed to the moon by a damsel pining under separation.
XCVIII. प्रतिषेध:-Prohibition. Dge. प्र斤तषेध: प्रसिस्य निषेधस्यानुकोर्तनम्। Ex. न द्यूतमेतत् कितब! क्रोड़नं निशिते: शर्श: ॥

रतत् ब्तूतम् व this is not the playing at dice
* दाषाम् night करोति does \(=\) moon and दाषाबाम् of faults बाकर: \(\operatorname{mine}=2\) mine of faults.

Def. Prohibition is the announcement of prevention of a well-known act.

Ex. O Gambler Sakuni ! This is not the playing at dice but this is the playing by sharpened arrows (the famous battle of Kurukshetra).

This is addressed by a true warrior to Sakuni, the uncle of Duryodhana, who at the celebrated gambling match threw the dice, won the game and obliged the good Pāndavas to go into exile and thus became the cause of that dreadful war. The statement that this is not the place of gambling but of war-an expression of a true fact-conveys the intended meaning of the speaker that Sakuni could do well at the gambling and not at this battlefield.

\section*{XCIX. विधि:-Fitness.}

बाहु: the learned call
Def. A declaration of a thing previously effected, the learned call as the figure Fitness.

\footnotetext{
* In the season in which panchama note becomes manifest.

Ex. Only in the spring season, the kokila bird shall become a kokila, i.e., charming.

Here, the re-declaration of kokila bird, a thing already effected, is to show its extreme charmingness in the spring season-a season for singing in the panchama tone.

\section*{C. हेतु:-The Cause.}

Def. The description of a cause along with its intended effect is termed the Cause.

Ex. That moon rises for quelling the pride of women of beautiful eye-brows.

\section*{Second sort of हैतु:-}

\end{tabular}

Def. The identity of a cause with its effect is reckoned by some as the figure the Cause.

Ex. The glances of the God Vishnu* (lit. the Lord of the Mount Venkata) are the graces of the Goddess of Furtune to the learned.

Here, the glance, the cause, is mentioned as identical with its effect, the graces of the Goddess of Fortune. This representation rests on the complete identification and indicates the speedy simultaneous effect.

\section*{दूत्यं शतमलंकारा लन्नयत्वा निद्शिर्शता:। प्राचामाधुरिकानां च मतान्यालोच्य सर्वशः ॥}

\section*{Poetical Conventions.}

The student should know first some of the conventions of poets to understand this as well as other works better.

The sky, sin, sorrow, sea, clouds, serpents, infamy, etc., are described as black; fame, laughter, renown, virtue, umbrella, water, flower, cloth, etc., as white ; anger, love, sun, learning, etc., as red; valour as red and hot. Lotuses, lilies, etc., can be described as growing in all the rivers, seas and in small tanks. Flamingoes and other birds are said to haunt in all receptacles of water. Water-elephants live in celestial Ganges too. Gems and the fish 'makara' are found in oceans; pearls in the river Tāmraparnī only. Bhūrja trees grow in the Himālaya alone; Sandal trees grow only in the Malaya Mountain and bear no flowers and fruits. Asoka does not fructify. Lotuses bloom only in the day; lilies only in the night. Mālatī does not bloom in the spring. The Indian cuckoos utter sweet notes only in the spring season. The cries and dances of peacocks and the emigration of the flamingoes to the Mānasa Lake occur only in the rainy season. The chakora birds are said to drink the moonlight. The chakravāka birds always move in couple; and the couple occupying the opposite banks of a river never see each other during the whole night. The God of love bears a flowery bow with only five flowery shafts and his bow-string is strung with bees. There is moonlight throughout the bright fortnight; and darkness throughout the black fortnight. The description of the setting sun must be followed by that of the rising moon. Separated lovers are affected at the sight of the clouds and feel the moonlight and the Malaya breeze as fire and also suffer very much from love fever. The moon on the crest of God Siva is always described as young. The description of men must be from head to foot and, in case of Gods, from foot to head.

Words expressive of comparison:
दूव बद् वा यथा (शब्दा:) समान-निभ-सन्निभा:।
तुल्य-सङ्षाश-नोकाश-प्रकाश-प्रतिरूपका: ॥ प्रतिपच्च-प्रतिद्नन्द्धि-प्रत्यनीक-विरोधिन:।
सद्टक्-सटृग-संवादि-सजातीयाडनुवाढिन: ॥
प्रतिबिंब-प्रतिच्छन्द्र-सरुप-सम-सम्मिता:।
सल च्च्य-सहच्चा SSभ-सपच्चोपमितोपमा: ॥ कल्प-देशीय-देश्या (SSदि) प्रस्य-प्रतिनिधी (अ्रणि)। सवर्ष-नुलितौ (घब्दौ यो चान्यूनार्थवादिन:)॥ D. K.

Of these, वत्, कल्प, देश्य, देश्शीय are taddhita terminations. The last three express a slight incomplete comparison. See V. 3. 67 P. A.

Other terminations expressive of comparison.
उपमानादाचारे (III. 1. 10). The affix क्यच् is optionally employed, in the sense of treatment, after a word ending in a case-affix denoting the object of comparison. Thus, पुर्नमिवाचरति छात्रम्=पुन्नीयाति छाव्रम् \(=\) he treats the pupil as a son. P. A.

कत्तु: क्यङ् सलोपश्य, (III. 1. 11). The affix क्यङ् is optionally employed in the sense of behaving, after a word ending in a case-affix denoting the object of comparison of the agent and there is elision of the final स् of the noun if it ends with a स्. Thus, श्येना द्रव अ्याचरति काक:=श्येनायते काक: = the crow behaves like a hawk. P. A.

The affix क्रिप् comes optionally in the sense of behaving like some one after all crude nouns (Vārtika of III. I. 11). Thus, गर्दभति or गर्दमायते = he behaves like an ass or he asses. P. A.

कन् a taddhitā termination.
लुम्मनुष्थे (V. 3. 98). When a man is denoted, the affix कन् expressing comparison is elided, the word retaining its number and gender. Thus चम्चा (चल्च दूव पुरुष:) a straw-man, i.e., an effigy in straw. P. A.

गिनि (द्रन्) a krit termination.
कर्तर्युपमाने (III. 2. 79). The affix एिनि comes after a verb when it is in composition with a word denoting an object of comparison, expressing the agent, the sense of the affix being 'doing something like that'. Thus, उष्ट्रकोशिन् = 'He who makes a noise like a camel'. P. A.

\section*{एमुल् the gerundial affix in अ्रम्.}

उपमाने कर्मरिए च (III. 4. 45). The affix एमुल् comes after a root, when an object or an agent, denoting similitude, is in composition with it. Thus, घृतरिधायं निहितं जलम् ='water was kept as ghee was kept'. P. A.

After carefully studying the above, the student should try to understand the following 32 varieties of the Figure उपमा according to S. D., K. P. and R. S. Of the ornaments of sense, उपमा forms the essence of all the figures that are founded on similarity and therefore its complete study becomes essential.

Observe. उपमा is first two-fold पूर्या 'complete' and लुप्रा 'elliptical'. These again are श्रौतो direct when the comparison is expressed by the employment of such words as यथा, द्व, वा or वत् all in the sense of English 'as'; and श्रार्थी indirect when the comparison is expressed by the use of the words तुल्य, समान, etc., all in the sense of English 'like'. श्यौती conveys the notion of similarity at the very hearing and क्षार्षों is to be understood only through the meaning of the expression. These two kinds are again three-fold as they occur in a sentence (वाक्यगता), in a compound (समासगता) and in a nominal affix (वध्घितगता). Thus, there are 6 varieties of पूर्ष ; and but of लुपा, there are 26 varieties.

पूर्ण -6 varieties.

1 सौती-तघितगता.
2 Do.-समासगता.
3 Do.-वाक्यगता.

That lady devoid of heart through pining in separation feels the Malaya breeze as fire itself; herself, residing in a jewelled mansion, thinks in a moment as if she is in a desert; and she is troubled like a fish out of water.

Here, in भ्रनलीयति = अनलमिवाचरति, we have अ्रनलम् in the accusative case because the मलयानिलम्, the upameya, is also in the accusative case.* Hence it is कर्म-कयच्. In काननीयति = कानने द्वव ज्याचरति, we have कानन in the locative case and it is therfore ग्राधार-क्यच्. In निर्जलमीनायते = निर्जल-मौनवत् ग्राचरति, we have क्यङ्.

O Jahnu's daughter (Gangā̄)! Those people who drink thy harmless water resembling the nectar-they all live in this world like immortal beings.

Here, in सुधापायम् = सुधामिव पोत्वा, we have सुधा in the accusative case ; and hence it is कर्म-एामूल् of root पा 'to drink'. In निर्जरावासम्-निर्जरा: ह्व डषित्वा, we have निर्जरा: in the nominative case like its upameya नरा: and hence it is कर्तृ-एामुल् of root वस् 'to dwell'.

S. D. mentions two other varieties of उपमा, viz., मालोपमा and रशनोपमा.

मालोपमा-Garland of Similes.
Def. When one object is compared to many, or in other words, when one upameya is compared to many upamānas, it is called मालोपमा.

\section*{27. अम्रस्रतपप्रशंसा-Indirect Description.}

The principal feature of this figure is that the description of the अप्रम्तुत, i.e., what is not the subjectmatter, must convey a reference to the प्रस्तुत i.e., the subject-matter. S. D., K. P. and R. S., mention five varieties of this figure :-

\section*{कार्ये निम्त्ते सामान्ये विशेषे प्रस्तुते सति।}

तदन्यस्य वचस्तुल्ये तुल्यस्येति च पन्चधा।।

कार्यै प्रसुते सति \(=\) when an effect is the subject-matter, तदन्यस्य बच:= the description of its contrary, i.e., cause (कारणा) ; निमित्ते प्रसुते सति \(=\) when a cause is the subject-matter, तदन्यस्य वच:=the description of its contrary, i.e., the effect (कार्य); सामाब्चे प्रसुते सति=when a general is the subject matter, तदन्चस्य वच:=the description of its contrary, i.e., the particular (विशेष); विशिषे प्रस्तुते सति \(=\) when a particular is the subject matter, तदन्यस्य वच: \(=\) the description of its contrary, i.e., the general (सामान्य) ; तुल्ये प्रसुते सति \(=\) when a similar thing is the subject matter, तुल्यe्य वच:=the description of another similar thing ; हूति \(=\) in this manner, पस्यधा = five-fold.

When the subject-matters in hand are (1) an effect (2) a cause, (3) a general, (4) a particular, the descriptions of their contraries, i.e., cause, effect, particular, general, respectively and when (5) a similar thing is the subject-matter, the description of another similar thing, (or in other words, when the descriptions of (1) a cause, (2) an effect, (3) particular, (4) a general, and (5) a similar thing convey reference to (1) effect, (2) cause, (3) the general, (4) the particular and (5) another similar thing which are respectively in question, such descriptions) are called the five varieties of this figure.

- (1) Effect is understood from the description of a cause.
अ्यानम्य वल्गुवचनेर्विनिवारितेऽणि

When I began to start, through anger, for a distant country though I was obstrucied, by sweet words, (by my lady) bending on her knees, that young maiden immediately arrested my way by her sportive kitten acting obedient to her will pointed out by her fingers.

Here, the cause, the lady's act, is described, when the effect, the prevention of her lover's departure is to be understood.

इन्दुलिलंप्र इ्वान्जनेन जड़िता द्वष्टिर्मृगोखामिव प्रग्लानारुश एमेव विद्युमदलं श्यामेव हेमप्रभा। कार्कश्यं कलया च कोकिलवधूक खोेष्विव प्रस्तुतं सोतायाः पुरतश्र हन्त शिखिनां वहो: सगहीं दूव ॥ S. D.

Alas ! In the presence of Sittā, the moon looked as if besmeared with lamp-black, the eyes of the does appeared to practice stapefaction, the vidruma leaf seemed to have attained faded redness, the lustre of the gold became black, harshness seemed to have resided in the throats of the female cuckoos when they uttered sweet notes, and the tails of the peacocks deserved censure.

Here, from the supposed effects of the moon being besmeared with the lamp-black etc., their causes, the extraordinary beauty of the face etc. of Sīta, are understood.

\section*{क्रतमपि महोपकारं पय दूव पोत्वा निरातङ्ग:। प्रत्युत हन्तुं यतते काकोदरसोदर: खलो जगति॥. R. S.}

In this world a wicked man, the type of a serpent, swallowing up even the great favour done (to him) like milk fearlessly tries on the contrary to kill (his benefactor).

Here, the description of a wicked man in general conveys a reference to a particular person, before the speaker, the subject matter,

\title{

> R. S.

The monkey, on whose bosom a necklace was placed by some ignorant fellow, licks and smells it (necklace) and compressing the same makes it to serve as a high seat (for himself).

Here, the description of the particular which is not the subject-matter refers to a general statement that ignorant persons should not be placed in possession of charming and valuable things which they do not deserve. Compare the proverb. "To throw pearls before swine".
(5) A similar thing is understood from the description of another, similar to it-

जनक: सानुविशेषो जाति: काॠ्टं भुजङ्गमै: सङ्ग:।
सगुऐ़ेरे पटीरज! यातोडसि तथापि महिमानम् ॥
Bhāminīvilāsa.
O Sandal tree! Thy father (native place) is a particular mountain (Malaya); thy creed is wood; and thy association is with the serpents; still thou hast attained to the greatness by thy own good qualities.

Here, the description of the sandal tree conveys a reference to a similar object, a good person born of a low caste and living amidst villains.

\section*{45. व्याघात:-Frustration.}
S. D. defines this figure thus :-'Frustration is when by the same means that one employed in bringing a thing to a particular state, another brings it to an opposite one'-and quotes the following as an example

\section*{दृशा दग्ध मनसिजं जीवयन्ति दृशैव या:।}

विरूपाच्चस्य जयिनोस्ताः स्तुमो वासलोचना:॥
We eulogize the fair-eyed women, the conquerors of God Siva of uneven (lit. deformed) eyes in that they (women) with their eyes restore to life the God of Love who was burnt by the eye (of God Siva).

\section*{53. परिसंस्था-Special Mention.}
S. D. defines this figure thus:-
' When with, or without a query, something is affirmed for the denial, expresssed or understood, of something else similar to it, it is Special Mention.'

Ex. किं भूषयां सुदृढ़मत्र यशो न रबं किं कार्यमार्यंचरितं सुन्ततं न दोष:। किं चत्तुरपतिहतं धिषया न नेत्रम् जानाति कर्वदपर: सदस्सहिवेकम् ॥
What is an imperishable (lit. very firm) ornament here (in this werld) ?-fame, not a gem. What ought to be performed? a good deed practised by the venerable men, and not a crime. Which is called an unimpeded eye?-the intellect, not the eye (itself). Who else than thee ( 0 king!) knows the discrimination between good and evil.

Here, a gem etc., which are to be denied as an ornament etc., are expressed, each preceded by a query.

किमाराध्यं सदा पुएयं कश्च सेव्यः सदागम:।

\section*{को घ्येयो भगवान् विष्युः किं काम्यं परमं पदम् ॥}

What is ever to be practised?-virtue.* What is to be resorted to-the study of good science. Who is to be meditated upon-the God Vishụu. Which is to be desired-the abode of Vishṇu or final beatitude.
* 'and not sin' is understood.

Here, \(\sin\) etc., which are to be denied, are umdero stood, here also preceded by a query.

\section*{Without queries:-}

\section*{भत्तिर्भवे न विभवे व्यसनं शास्ल न युवत्वतिकामास्ले। चिन्ता यर्शसि न वरुषि प्रायः परिद्टप्यते महताम् If}

Devotion to God Siva and not to riches, intent attachment to the science and not to young maiden, the weapon of God of Love; anxiety for fame and not for body are generally found in the great.

Here, things to be denied are expressed.
बलमार्तीभयोपशान्तये विदुषां सम्मतये बहु ग्रुतम्।
वसु तस्य न केवलं विभोगुएवत्तांडिप परप्रयाजनम् ॥
The strength of that lord is for quelling the fear of the distressed. His great learning is for honouring the scholars. Not only his riches but his possession of good qualities too are for the purpose of others.

This figure founded upon a Paronomasia is more striking. For example see the text.
58. प्रत्यनीकम्-Rivalry.

\section*{Ex. मध्येन तनुमध्या मे मथ्यं जितबतोल्ययम्। डूभक्रुम्भौ भिनत्तगस्याः कुचकुग्भानिभौ हरि:॥}
'This slender-waisted maiden vanquished my waist with hers'so thinking, the lion cleaves the frontal globes (on the forehead) of the elephant which resemble the jar-like bosoms of that lady.

Here, the lion unable to avenge itself directly on the lady, its conqueror in vanquishing its waist by hers, cleaves the frontal globes, of the elephant, which have a connection of resemblance with the circular bosoms of the lady. This kind of description proves the excellence of the waist of the lady.
60. कार्य्यलझ्ञम्-Poetical Reason.

Def. When a reason is implied in a sentence or in a word or words, it is called Poetical Reason.

Ex. वपु:प्रादुर्भावादनुमित्तमिदं जन्मनि पुरा

\section*{पुरारे ! न प्राय: बचचिदाप भवन्तं प्रयतवान् ।}

नसन्मु कः संप्रत्यह्नमतनुरग्र्र ऽप्यनतिभाक्

\section*{महेश ! चन्तव्यं तदिदमपराधह्ययमपि ॥}

O God Siva (lit. Destroyer of 3 cities)! By thís (my) body coming into existance, it must be inferred that I rever saluted thee in any of my previous births. And now saluting thee, I am emancipated ; and I therefore, bodiless, cannot salute thee in my future birth. Thus these two faults of mine should be pardoned O Great Lord !

Here, non-salutation becomes the reason for the faults committed and this fact is expressed by two sentences.

अ्यतनु:-' non-assumption of the body' is the reason for कग्रे श्रनतिभाक् 'non-salutation in the future birth' and we have काव्यलिंग in a single word. नमब्मुतः ' final emancipation by saluting' is the reason for अतनु: ' non-assumption of the body' and this fact having been expressed by two words नमन्मुत्तः, we have the Poetical Reason in more than one word.
N.B.-This figure occuring in a sentence should not be confounded with the figures च्र्थान्तरन्यास 'Transition' (59) nor with अनुमानम् 'Inference' ; * on this, S. D. says as follows:-' In the province of poetry the reason is three-fold, as being Informative, Completive and Justificative (or Confirmative). Of these three sorts, the Infirmative Reason is the subject of the figure Inference,* the Completive of the Poetical. Reason and the Justificative of the Transition. Thus the Transition founded upon a causation is evidently distinct from the Poetical Reason.'
- This figure is not treated in this book.
S. D. defines it thus :-' The notion, expressed in a peculiarly striking manner, of a thing established by proof, is termed Inference,' and exemplifies thus :-

\section*{यन पतत्यबलानां दृष्टिर्निशिता: पत्तन्ति तत्र शराः। \\ तच्चापारोपितशरो धावत्यासां पुरः स्मरो मन्ये ॥}
' Wherever falls the sight of women, there fall sharpened arrows ; Hence, I infer, Cupid runs before them with his bow furnished with shafts'.

\section*{92. वक्रोति:-Crooked Speech.}

काकु 'Emphasis' is an emotional alteration of the sound or an affected change of voice in such a manner as to imply the contrary meaning of the expression employed by the speaker.

\section*{Ex. श्यमालोच कोपस्ते नोचितोडयमितीरिता। नैवोचितोडयमिति तं ताड़यम्मास मालया ॥}
'Lady ! Thy anger is an inconsiderate one and is not just ;' thus told (by her lover), she saying (in a prolated and affected tone) 'NOT just' gave him a blow with her garland.

\section*{95. उदात्तम्-The Exalted.}

Example of the description of prosperity. रत्नस्तम्भेषु संक्रान्ते: प्रतिबिम्बशतेर्वृतः।
ज्ञातो लंकेश्वर: क्कक्रादान्जनेयेन तत्वतः ॥
Rāvana surrounded by the innumerable images of his own reflected in the jewelled pillars (of his palace) was with great difficulty recognized by Hanūmān (lit. son of श्ञझ्जना).

From this, the super-mundane prosperity of Rāvana, king of Lankā, the object under description, is apprehended.

It is essentially necessary that student should know what is संसृष्टि: 'Conjunction' and what is संकर: 'Commixture' as they are not treated in this book.

Def. A combination of two or more of the ornaments treated in this book which exist independently of each other in one place is called the Conjunction संसृष्टि. On the contrary, a combination of two or more ornaments, in one and the same place, which are subordinate to one another and about which there is dubiousness is called the Commixture सद्भर.

\section*{Example of Conjunction.}

देव: पायादपायान्नः स्मेरेन्दौवरलोचन:।
संसारध्वान्तविध्वंसहंस: कंसनिस्रुदनः॥
May that God (Krishṇa) of the blooming lotus-like eyes-the Slayer of Kamsa-the Sun in annihilating the darkness of this worldly life protect us from calamity. ( \(\left.\bar{\zeta}^{\circ} स=\operatorname{Sun}\right)\).

In the compound स्मेरे०, we have an Elliptical Sinille No. 1 in the omission of the word implying comparison ; and in the compound संसा०, we have a Metaphor by the superimposition of the God Sun upon Krishna. These two ornaments exist in the same place independently of each other.

\section*{Example of Commixture.} द्दद्राभाति गगने भिन्दानं सन्ततं तम:। घ्रमन्दनयनानन्दकरं मगडल मैन्दवम् ॥
This lunar orb dispelling the thick darkness and causing excessive delight to the eyes shines in the sky.

This can be taken as :-
(1) अप्रम्तुतप्रशंसT-Indirect Description, as this description of the resplendent moon shining in the sky-the object not on hand-conveys a reference to a beautiful dame standing on the top of a sky. kissing mansion, her circular face alone being visible above the parapet wall ;
(2) A Metaphor No. 1 श्रनुमयाभिदर्पपकम् as the moon's orb is superimposed upon a fair face intimated by the pronoun ' \(द\) दम् = this';
(3) ग्रतिश्योति No. 1 (रुपकातिश्योश्ति \(=\) Metaphorical Hyperbole), through the introsusception of the circular face in the orb of the moon ;
(4) पर्यायोत्तम्-Periphrasis, as the advent of the night that excites delight in the minds of the united lovers-the fact to be intimated by the speaker-has been expressed by a turn of speech-the description of the moon ;
(5) समासोति-Modal Metaphor, as the face intimated by 'दूदम्-this'-the object not on hand, is understood by the description of the moon-the object on hand, from a sameness of action, i.e., the action of expelling the darkness of the night by their splendours ;
(6) तुब्ययोगिता-Equal Pairing, as the face and the lunar orb which can be taken as objects on hand are associated with a sameness of attributes-shining and expelling the darkness ;
(7) दीपकम्-Illuminator, as the face and the lunar orb the former of which is now taken as the object on hand and the latter as one not on hand are together associated with one and the same attribute-the verb घ्याभाति ; and so on.

As we have here a dubiousness about all these ornaments, this figure is called सद्धर।

In UPAMA, we have a striking expressed resemblance that has been sanctioned by convention of poets and that will exite poetical delight and give an agreeable surprise. In PRATIPA, we have not got that striking resemblance. The usual form of comparison is inverted and the excellence of upameya over upamāna is implied. In UTPREKSHA, we have a more stricking suggested resemblance not confined to the convention of poets but solely due to the imaginative skill of the poet.

In UPAMA, the comparison is between two distinct objects-upameya and upamäna. In ANANVAYA, one and the same object is compared, i.e., to itself in the absence of a second thing to be compared to. The resemblance is not a striking one.

In UPAMA, we have the comparison in one sentence. In the other, we have the reciprocal comparison between two distinct objects and the reciprocation is possible only in two sentences. The comparision is not a striking one.

In RUPAKA, two distinct objectsupamāna and upameya-are represented as identical on account of their close resemblance. In ATISAYOKTI No. 1, upameya is comprehended as identical with upamāna through introsusception and is expressed by the word representing the upamāna.

In RUPAKA, upamāna and upameya are identified without their distinct characters being concealed. In APAHNUTI the real character of the upameya is concealed, i.e., denied and that of another imaginary upamāna is superimposed upon it.

In RUPAKA, the identification is not a mistaken one. In BHRANTIMAN, it is mistaken one.

In PARINAMA, the act of the sentient upameya is transferred to the upamāna. In RUPAKA, the upamāna is not connected with any act of the upameya.

In ULLEKHA, the upameya is looked upon as identical with several upamānas by one or different perceivers through difference of peculiarities according to their taste. In RUPAKA, the upameya is simply identified with one or many upamānas on account of their close resemblance only and not under any differential peculiarity.

In SMRITCMAN, the sight of the upamana brings to the mind of the beholder the recollection of the upameya. In BHRANTIMAN, we mistake upameya for upamāna. In SANDEHA, we doubt the certainty of an objectwhether it is upamāna or upameya.

In APAHNUTI, the upameya is denied, i.e., is concealed and some other, i.e., upamāna is imposed upon it. In VYAJOKTI, we have the artful concealment of an object, though discovered, which is not mentioned by the person who conceals the same. In AKSHEPA, we have only a semblance of denial, i.e., a pretended denial of what has been said by the speaker himself.

In UTPREKSHA, the introsusception is not complete, i.e., the upameya is fancied under the character of upamāna. In ATISAYOKTI, the introsusception is complete, as the upameya which is comprehended as upamāna is not mentioned and is expressed by the word expressing the upamāna.

In UTPREKSHA, the poet who entertains the fancy is fully aware of the distinct nature of the upameya to which he attributes the imaginary character-upamāna. In BHRANTIMAN, the person who mistakes the upameya for upamana is not conscious of the upameya-the subject mistaken, on account of its close resemblance with the upamäna.

In UTPREKSHA, the fancied upamāna is apprehended more prominently than the upameya. In SANDEHA, both upamảna and upameya are apprehended as equally prominent on account of their close resemblance which creates a doubt in the mind of the perceiver who is therefore unable to decide whether the object before him is really upameya or upamāna itself.

In TULYAYOGITA, we have the sameness of attribute of objects on hand, or of objects not on hand. In DIPAKA, the objects on hand and those not on hand are together associated with one and the same attribute mentioned only once. (See pages 46 and 47.)

प्रतिवस्तूपमा

In PRATIVASTUPAMA, we have a parallel representation of the same common attribute expressed by different words. In DRISHTANTA, we have a reflective \({ }_{\text {§ }}\) representation of similar attributes. (See page 50.) In PRATIVASTUPAMA, the two sentences* employed terminate in conveying the same sense. In DRISHTANTA, the sentences * have a similar sense reflectively expressed. In NIDARSANA, the senses of two sentences \(\dagger\) terminate in a comparison. In ARTHANTARANYASA, we have the relation of general and particular between the senses of two sentences employed one of which serves to illustrate the other.

In VYATIREKA, we have an expressed resemblance accompanied by a difference. In MILITA, we have a suggested resemblance; but the difference between upameya and upamāna is not perceivable on account of the one having been eclipsed by the other, i.e., the upameya, inferior in quality, is not at all apprehended by its being eclipsed by the upamāna, superior in quality. In SAMANYA, the two objects, upamāna and upameya, could not be distinguished on account of their having like properties and in the absence of any discriminating peculiarity. In MILITA, the inferior object gives up its own quality. In SAMANYA, both the objects do not give up their qualities. In UNMILITA, the difference which was not perceivable as in MILITA, becomes manifest by some act of the perceiver. In VISESHAKA, the discriminating peculiarity which was absent in SAMANYA becomes manifest by the accidental operation of another agency.

In SAMASOKTI, the object not on hand, aprastuta, is intimated by the description of an object on hand, prastuta. In APRASTUTAPRASAMSA, the object on hand is intimated by the description of an object not on hand. In PARYAYOKTAM, what is to be intimated is expressed by a turn of speech -by words which do not express it but by words which suggest it. In VYAJASTUTI, praise is understood by apparent censure and censure is understood by apparent praise.

SHOKTI, we have an absence of the effect notwithstanding the existence of a cause, or in other words, we have a cause without an effect. In VIRODHA, we have both the objects represented as apparently contradicting each other. In ASANGATI, we have a cause and the effect represented as occupying two different localities. In VISHAMA, we have a cause opposed to its effect. In VYAGHATA, we have one and the same cause producing different effectsone natural and the other the exact opposite. In PRAUDHOKTI, we have simply an attribution of a cause to an effect as boldly asserted by the poet which cause cannot form the cause of that effect. In HETU 2nd SORT, we have a cause identified with its effect.

In PARYAYA, we have one object residing in many places, or many objects in one and the same place, in succession. In VISESHA 2nd KIND, we have one object existing in many places, i.e., residing in many places simultaneously.

In SAMADHI, the effect of an act through one cause is facilitated by the accidental operation of another cause and this cause is therefore more powerful than the other and hence we have in samadhi unequal causes. In SAMUCHCHAYA 2nd KIND, all causes are equally powerful in bringing out the same effect with emulation as the Maxim of the Threshing floor and the Pegions*, i.e., just as the pegions alight together upon a threshing floor, each with emulation.

In ARTHANTARANYASA, we have two statements one of which illustrates the other, i.e., one contains a justificative reason for confirming the other and thus we have here a relation of general and particular: In KAVYALINGA; one statement forms an implied completive reason for the other and we have no such relation of the general and the particular.

In MILITA, an object of inferior quality is lost in the superior quality of the other. In TADGUNA, the object gives up its own inferior quality and assumes the superior quality of the other.

In UTTARA, we infer from a statement made that a question has been previously made. In PARISANKHYA 2nd kind (see Appendix), we have both question and answer. In काव्यलिंग KAVYALINGA, the reason which is not preceded by a question is an implied one and is to be-inferred by the student from the context.

In SVABHAVOKTI, we have an exact delineation of an object with reference to its peculiar action or natural appearance as is perceived by the poet alone. In BHAVIKA, we have a description of an event past or future in such a manner as can bring the sabject of description vividly before the mind's eye.
